Russia Expected Scuttle Big Three Negotiations

Western Powers Continue Demand Inspection System In Nuclear Ban

Western diplomats expressed fear this week that the Soviet Union may scuttle Big Three negotiations for an inspection system to enforce a ban on nuclear weapons tests.

Their fear arose from the Soviet rejection of a U.S.-British move for a year's suspension of nuclear tests beginning with the opening of the Big Three talks in Geneva Friday.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin told the UN's 31-nation Political Committee Monday night that the Soviet Union was prepared to contribute "in every way possible" to the success of the negotiations. However, he said the Soviet Union would adhere to its insistence on an unconditional agreement to suspend tests "immediately and forever."

The Western Powers demand an inspection system to detect violations before agreeing to any permanent arrangement. To this Zorin insisted that Russia would continue nuclear weapons testing until their number equals the total of the U.S. and British set off since last March 31. On that date the Soviets announced a suspension of tests but resumed them again in September.

Zorin's statement was the first public answer to President Eisenhower's challenge that the Soviets join this country and Britain in a one-year suspension of all nuclear weapons tests including hydrogen bombs. His statement brought quick replies from both the United States and Great Britain.

British Minister of State Allan Noble said the Soviet Union was persisting in a "position of extreme rigidity hardly calculated to bring about an agreed solution."

A responsible source said the Russians were building up to a wrecking of the Geneva talks. He said they were right back to where they were 12 years ago, calling for an unconditional ban but unwilling to listen to suggestions for enforcing such a ban.

They Rest In Peace.

And speaking of the death of the ungainly styles fostered on an unsuspecting public by Paris designers, it should be noted that the latest decree from the Paris fashion centers is actually a capitulation to American men—they resisted the shapeless creations, by whatever name they were known, and won. Which goes to show you, as one wag has pointed out, that you can't make a sow's ear out of a silk dress—and get away with it for long.

The awkward age: Too old for income tax exemption and too young for old age pension. (And you thought the awkward age was the early teens.)

Basil Horschfeld, vice-president, Reynolds Metals Co., tells the story of a recent visitor to the local plant. Mr. Horschfeld gave him a conducted tour of the entire layout and his guest seemed interested, in fact, absorbed in every detail, although making few, if any, comment as they visited each phase of production. Finally, after the plant had been covered in its entirety, the visitor asked: "After seeing all this complicated system of manufacturing aluminum here in your plant, wouldn't it be cheaper to go out and buy it?"

White lies wouldn't be so bad in their telling if they didn't lead to lies of all shades, shapes and hues as time goes on.

Abolishment Of Public Schools Hit By Attorney

Member State Board Education Says Other Way Must Be Found

A member of the State Board of Education Tuesday warned that abolishment of the public schools in Alabama would "set the schools back 100 years . . . and would not work."

Atty. Robert Locklin of Mobile declared the state already ranked 45th among the states in per cent of population over the age of 25 having completed high school and was 46th in current expense per pupil in average daily attendance.

He said closing the public schools would only add to the state's educational problems and "there must be another solution."

He said the teachers of the state schools were paid an average of $900 less than the national average and only 123 of the 558 high schools in the state were accredited to the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Locklin, addressing the local League of Women Voters in Mobile, said possible solutions may be offered in the report of the Alabama Education Commission which is scheduled to make recommendations on the state's long-range school needs to the next Legislature.

He said bolstering the schools, which he added are suffering a severe lack of classrooms, might require increased sales taxes, increased income taxes, and increase in the county ad valorem tax, levying a county sales tax, changes in the method of allocating the minimum program funds based on current enrollment, enactment by Congress of a plan, the Heller plan, whereby new school taxes paid would be directly deductible from income taxes.

In Birmingham alone it was estimated that if private schools replaced the present 2100 classrooms it would cost some $31 million for classrooms alone to say nothing of other expenses for gyms, lunchrooms, kitchens, rest rooms, auditorium space, etc. It would cost parents some $500 to $1000 each at the beginning for school buildings. In Birmingham the average per pupil expenditure per year, state and local is $186. So a yearly tuition of $186 could be expected, it was pointed out.

Plenty Of Fish In TVA Lakes

No More Than Twenty Percent Of Game Fish Caught In Any Year

Even with year-round fishing, more die of old age in TVA lakes than end up in the frying pan, TVA said today in a report issued by its Fish and Game Branch.

According to best estimates, no more than 20 percent of the available game fish crop is harvested in any one year, and commercial species are even less adequately harvested.

The report states that the sport fish catch is now estimated at 10 million pounds a year and generates about $15 million worth of business. The commercial catch, now between 4 and 5 million pounds a year, is valued at about one million dollars. And the value of mussel shells harvested is approximately a half million dollars a year.

The report states that little was known about fisheries management in multiple purpose reservoirs when TVA began its dam building program in 1933, and many persons did not expect the lakes to furnish any great amount of fishing. But within a few years "there was little doubt that the river fish had taken to the reservoir habitat and were increasing rapidly," the report says. There was no need for fish hatcheries, and stocking was "a waste of time" except to introduce new species.

"Despite some friction between sport and commercial fishermen," the report states, "there is little evidence that the commercial fishery hurts sport fishing. On the contrary, more commercial fishing is desirable in the mainstream reservoirs where rough fish tend to take over if their number isn't controlled."

The report adds that TVA tributary reservoirs do not attract waterfowl because they are downed for flood control at the time the ducks and geese arrive from the north. But it states, the mainstream reservoirs do contribute to waterfowl development. Land and water has been made available to the states and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for refuges and management areas. As food production increased, so did the waterfowl population. Today thousands of ducks and geese that formerly went on to the Gulf now winter in the Valley.

Tide Readies For Big Homecoming

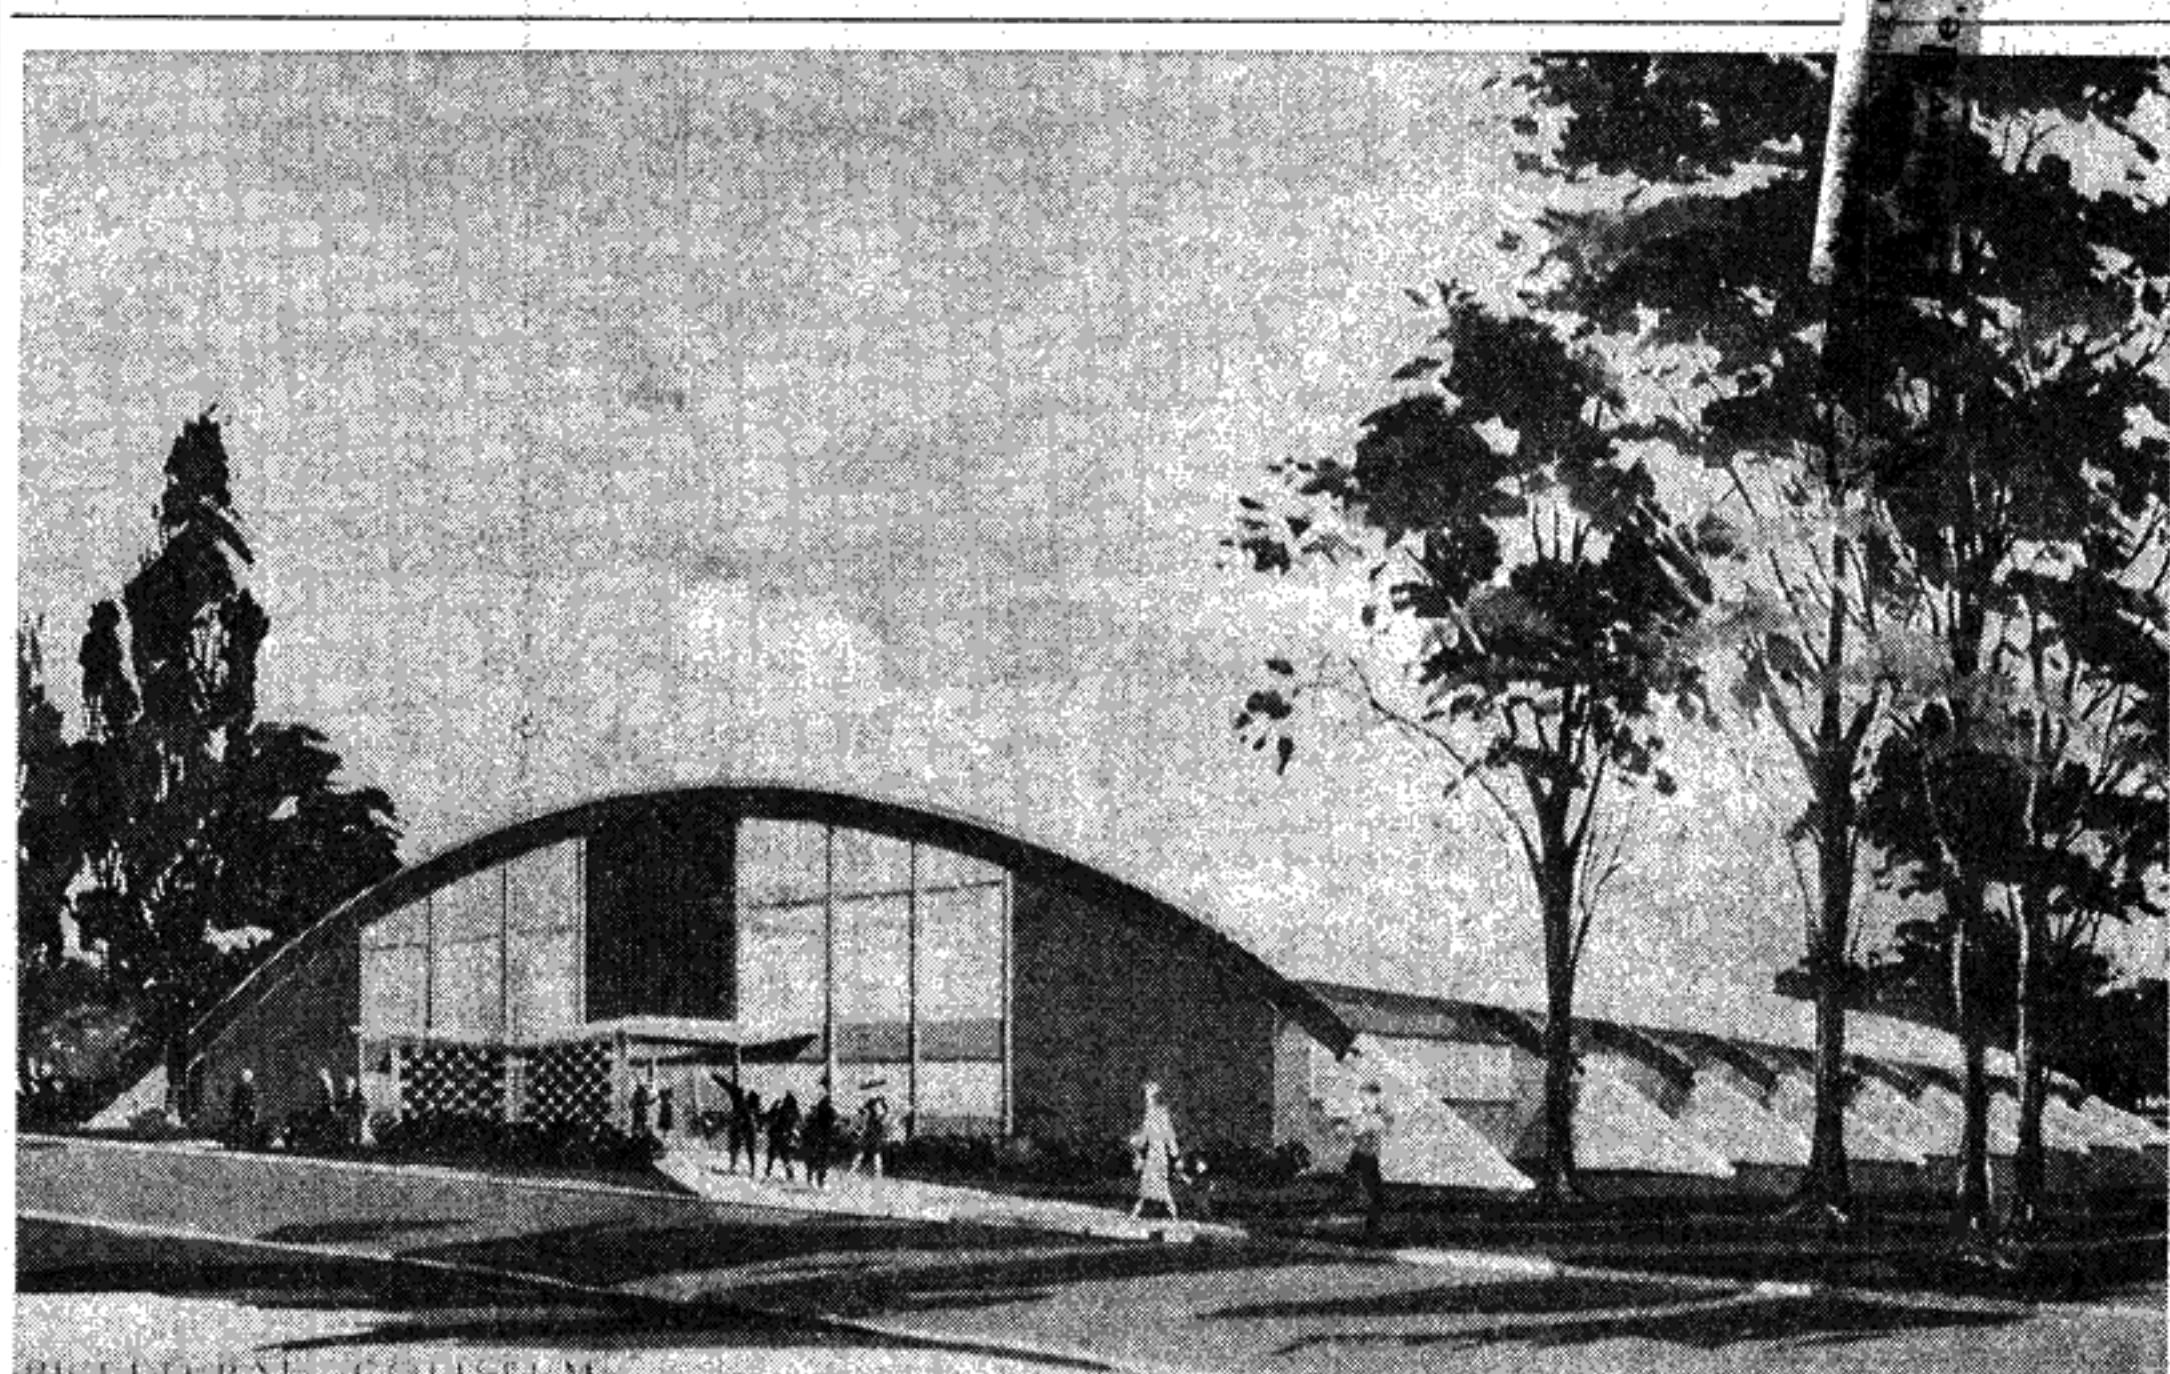

"Roll Tide, Roll!" will be the cry heard far and wide this weekend as thousands of the UA alumni and other boosters converge at the University for the annual Homecoming and the football game Saturday between Bear Bryant's Red Elephants and the University of Georgia's Bulldogs.

Major activities will begin Friday night, Oct. 31, with a giant pep rally. Emcee will be the noted sportscaster Mel Allen, alumnus and former instructor at the University.

The Homecoming Parade, colorful feature of the annual event, will be staged at 10 a.m. Saturday. Floats from fraternities, sororities, residence halls, and campus organizations will parade, along with the "Million Dollar Band," crack drill teams of the Army ROTC's Sabre Air Command. Alabama's 1958 Homecoming Queen selected earlier in the week, and other candidates for the title will add beauty to the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yust and son, Johnny, of Oak Ridge, Tenn., are spending this week with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Bland, 804 Kendrick St.

An underground gas explosion, the second in 24 hours, ripped through a coal mine near Richmond, W. Va., Tuesday, blocking passageways with a wall of earth and fire. More than six hours after the blast, rescuers had brought four of the 17 trapped men to the surface on conveyor belts from 2½ miles inside the mine. Three were in serious condition with burns and smoke inhalation. The last of the 13 remaining bodies were removed from the mine yesterday by rescue workers. In the explosion the day before 22 men were killed.

Nat'l Children's Book Week To Be Observed Locally

Muscle Shoals Regional Libraries Join In 40th Annual Anniversary

Numerous special events will mark Muscle Shoals Regional Library's observance of the 40th annual National Children's Book Week, which begins Sunday, November 2, Ethel Pearson, Director, announces. There will be special displays in the headquarters: Florence-Lauderdale Public Library and in the other two libraries belonging to the regional set-up: Sheffield Public Library and Leighton Public Library.

The first nation-wide observance of Book Week was held on November 10, 1919. The idea was suggested to the American Booksellers Association by Franklin K. Mathews, Chief Boy Scout Librarian. It grew quickly and has been observed every since.

Several hundred new children's books which have been published during the late summer and fall months will be displayed in the three libraries. Children, parents, teachers and interested adults are invited to visit the libraries during the week. A wonderful world of fact and fun is open to every boy and girl who has a library card. Parents and teachers who wish to buy books for Christmas giving will be glad to visit the library and have the opportunity to examine the books and decide which to order.

The library staff is already scheduling visits for classrooms, Boy and Girl Scouts and other interested persons.

Besides the books on display in the library, visitors may see the attractive Book Week poster with the theme: EXPLORE WITH BOOKS. The designer of this year's poster is Paul Rand, an outstanding young American artist. Seymour Robins is the creator of this year's "Explore with Books" mobile. These along with other streamers and posters will attract the eyes of the young fry.

In the Florence-Lauderdale Library will be special story-book characters displayed along with the books. This is a hobby of one of the staff members.

Those on the Muscle Shoals Library Staff to welcome visitors will be: Miss Ethel Pearson, Director of the regional library, Mrs. Ione Sisson, Bookmobile Librarian, and Mr. John Howard, Bookmobile driver. In Florence: Mrs. Gladys Robertson, Mrs. Mary Ann Busler, and Mrs. Mildred Taylor. Following a request by Probate Judge Herman K. Longshore for the $50,000 allocation for construction of an agricultural coliseum that had been turned back to the state by Colbert County, the State Agricultural Center Board approved a resolution on Oct. 23 transferring the funds to Lauderdale County. The announcement was made by A. W. Todd, Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries.

Judge Longshore said the Court of County Commissioners had adopted a plan to provide the $50,000 matching funds necessary for the coliseum but expressed hope that the city of Florence would also come in and make the project a joint one. Colbert County had been forced to turn back the funds because the voters defeated a $250,000 bond proposal that would have provided the necessary matching funds.

Judge Longshore said he did not think that $100,000 would be "sufficient to build the type of building we want." He said he was thinking of a building that would seat around 5,000 persons.

Mayor E. F. Martin hailed the news of the coliseum as a fine thing for Florence and while there had been no definite decision made as to the extent of the city's part in the matter, he said he felt the city would participate and do as much as possible in making this the finest project of its kind in this part of the South. He said several sites had been discussed with the view of finding one near the college if possible but no definite selection had been made. Florence State has been hampered much in recent years from the lack of such a facility and it is considered of vital importance to the future of the institution.

A meeting was scheduled for late Wednesday in which county and city officials and Dr. E. E. Norton, president of Florence State College, were to further discuss the possibilities of the project and the problems involved in its location and ultimate size.

Digest Of Talks By Reynolds And Ford Officials

Versatility Of Aluminum Described; Uses Could Be Tripled In Ten Years

In an address to news, radio, and TV representatives on Wednesday at Listerhill, Abram D. Reynolds, vice president of Reynolds Aluminum Sales Company said:

"At the risk of being labeled a salesman, which I like to think I am most of the time, I want to say with all sincerity, that I believe your coming here to observe Reynolds aluminum operations is an occasion of some importance."

Mr. Reynolds' Address

The highlights of Mr. Reynolds' address follow:

It would take a Solomon to decide the degree of this importance to you as reporters serving the eyes and ears of the world in automotive affairs — to the automotive industry rapidly becoming the largest user of aluminum — to Reynolds as the major supplier of aluminum for automotive needs.

You are the first newsmen to see the direct transformation of a prime producer's molten aluminum into an automotive part produced by a major manufacturer of automobiles.

I am informed that for most of you, this is the first time that you have ever been inside an aluminum plant—at least an aluminum reduction plant where the white powder alumina becomes aluminum.

If this were just another first, it would have just that significance. But it is much more than that. It means a new era for both the aluminum industry and for the automotive industry.

We, with Ford and other major segments of the auto industry, are now engaged in redistributing aluminum over the earth's surface in the form of usable, attractive products.

We are doing this through the newer concept of designing for aluminum, rather than the primitive approach of direct substitution for common materials with traditional methods.

We are spreading the benefits of aluminum into multiplying automotive applications. And we are doing it at a rate of growth curve greater than that of any other material of construction for passenger cars.

If that sounds extravagant, here are some statistics to back it up. During the period of 1955 to 1959 models, the average amount of aluminum per passenger car increased from 30 to 57 pounds or 90 per cent.

Our long range forecasts for automotive use of aluminum, without any of the major breakthroughs you know are in the offing, indicate that consumption will more than triple within 10 years.

But these figures do not include volume consuming applications such as engines, integral wheel and brakes, bumpers, and major units of chassis and body construction.

By extending to other parts of a car the automotive mass production techniques already engineered for aluminum, it would be possible to produce right now an all-aluminum car.

"Let a prophet be without honor."

Reynolds Sees All-Aluminum Car Very Soon

"The integration of three giant industries—Reynolds Metals Co., Ford Motor Co., and TVA—into one harmonious operation is an inspiring cooperative effort to view," said one member of the press, radio and TV group visiting and inspecting the local industrial plants Wednesday as he expressed the consensus of those in the party.

After a briefing by R. B. Newman, Reduction Plant manager, Reynolds, the group, totaling some 35 representatives of leading automobile trade magazines and metropolitan newspapers, were given a close inspection tour of the Reynolds reduction plant, both old and new installations, and then, under the direction of D. H. Hipp, Alloy Plant manager, were conducted through these plants.

Completing the tour of Reynolds during the morning, the group, which included local press, radio and TV representatives, were guests of Ford Motor Co., at luncheon. This was followed by a tour of the Ford plant under the direction of H. G. McMurry, plant manager.

Immediately following this inspection tour, the group met in the conference room of the Ford plant to hear important addresses by A. D. Reynolds, vice president, sales, Reynolds Metals Co., and C. H. Patterson, vice president, Power Train group, Ford Motor Co. Digests of their addresses appear elsewhere in this newspaper.

Mr. Patterson pointed to the greater amount of aluminum now being used in the manufacture of automobiles with the 1959 models setting an all-time record. He said that he predicted greater use of the metal in years ahead and gave some insight as to the study and experiments being carried out along these lines.

Mr. Reynolds, after giving a brief history of the growing use of aluminum in the manufacture of automobiles, said that he would make a statement, based on facts at hand, that might be five years in the making but was a certainty. That statement, "By extending to other parts of the car the automotive mass production techniques already engineered for aluminum, it would be possible to produce right now an all-aluminum car."

This statement by Mr. Reynolds, although smiled upon by Mr. Patterson, created much interest among the newsmen and brought many questions, which were answered by Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Patterson.

In addition to the Ford and Reynolds officials in attendance, the following were included in the guest list of honor:

First Voter's Reaction

A Memphian who turned 21 just in time to register to vote in November had an interesting reaction to the experience. In the first place, he was impressed by the courtesy and efficiency of the people who man the registration office. Kindly comment about those folks is often heard, as a matter of fact. In the second place, he was somewhat surprised and disturbed at the lack of any special requirements before one could qualify for registration. What, he asked, did anybody in authority know about whether he was a person fit to be entrusted with the privilege of voting and helping decide who should hold office. He felt strongly that there should be some reasonably strict tests involving literacy, good moral character and so on. The points raised by this first voter are interesting and have a great deal to commend them. His position is sharply opposed to that of those who hold that reaching a certain age automatically entitles a person to vote. We agree heartily and hope that his point of view will be entertained by more and more Americans. (Chicago Daily News Foreign Service)

Small Woodlands Needed

There is possibly only one material that has a greater basic value than steel and that is wood. Alabama is one of the nation's most important timber producing states and together with neighboring Southern states ranks second only to the West Coast area in production of timber volume for the needs of the country today. Actually timber sustains the population of the nation in several ways: it protects the wildlife resources, prevents destructive soil erosion, protects the precious water table, provides life-giving oxygen and makes possible the economical construction of millions of homes and buildings needed each year by our fast-increasing population. Without the woodlands we should soon be living in an arid desert. And so a continuous effort must be made to protect our timber resources so that there will be more than an adequate supply for future generations. Timber in recent years has become a money crop on many farms, both small and large and on Nov. 12 a Forest Ownership Conference will be held at Montgomery's Whitley Hotel in an effort to interest farmers and other citizens in owning small woodlands. Sponsors are: Alabama Department of Conservation, A. P. I. Extension Service, Soil Conservation Service, U. S. Forest Service, Alabama Forest Products Association, Alabama Bankers Association. Others cooperating in the program are: Alabama Forestry Council and Society of Alabama Foresters. Production of the 66 board feet of timber per person needed annually at the present time is no problem, but forest conservation leaders throughout the nation visualize the acute problem which is approaching with expansion of the population to an estimated 275 million people by the year 2000. Obviously, our forest acreage is not increasing in proportion to the population expansion, nor is the use of wood products per capita going to be smaller in the future. Rather, throughout the history of this nation, per capita consumption of wood products has grown steadily and almost certainly will continue to do so in the future. The only apparent solution to the problem is to increase wood production per acre in those lands devoted to forestry. At the present time, public woodlands and those owned by large timber and pulp interests are under intensive management. The problem is in improving management and reforestation on the small acreage forest ownerships.

Rev. Summerell Is Exchange Speaker

The Rev. J. V. C. Summerell, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, was the guest speaker before the Exchange Club at Hotel Reeder Tuesday noon. Harold Cater had charge of program arrangements and presented the speaker. The Rev. Mr. Summerell called attention to the current observance of World Fellowship Week and pointed out that the prime object was to learn to conquer ourselves and learn to live with each other. "Why reach for the moon," he quoted, "when we have not conquered ourselves." "The world idea seems to be divided into three camps," the speaker said and proceeded to break down these three ideologies. 1. Domination. Recounting the history of the events that led up to World War II, Mr. Summerell pointed to the efforts of Hitler and his people toward the domination of the world. He showed how this idea had failed and said that if Stalin had lived, he would have attempted the same plan. 2. Separation. The United States has learned, the speaker stressed, that the idea of building a wall around us, glory in our own prosperity and let the rest of the world go by is not a safe way nor a correct way to live. Events of recent years have shown that each nation must live in close cooperation with each other if happiness and peace are to prevail. Separation then, he said, is not the answer to world fellowship. 3. Love. True love then, he said, seems to be the answer. "We need not like everyone but we should love everyone," Mr. Summerell stressed, adding that we must get off our lofty perch and make every effort to love, understand and be patient and through these attributes we can reach world fellowship. Decriing the present condition in which the world finds itself, Mr. Summerell urged that every nation appreciate what we have at stake and do those things that will bring all of us closer into a world of true fellowship.

WCTU In Annual Roll-Call Meet

Members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and interested friends met at the First Methodist Church, Wednesday, at 12:00 o'clock for the annual roll-call luncheon meeting. Among the several ministers present, was Dr. James L. Sullivan, of Nashville. The Rev. Charles Dorris, accompanied by Mrs. E. H. Gregory, sang a solo, "My Heavenly Father Watches Over Me." Dr. G. M. Davenport spoke on some of the evils and dangers of beverage alcohol. Dr. Davenport said: "Alcohol is a deadly poison. It is habit-forming. He told about how very hard it is to break the habit of drinking, once it is formed. "How statesmen do rave about the revenue," he said, and he went on to show that it costs far more than the revenue collected. "It pulls down the morale and the standards of the people." "Any nation that sanctions liquor is a criminal in the sight of God." In conclusion, Dr. Davenport said, "The worst course that could come to Lauderdale County is legalized liquor."

Ford Celebrates 50th Birthday Famed T Model

Copy Of 1909 Touring Car Produced To Commemorate Occasion

To commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Model T, Ford Motor Company reached back a half century today and produced a 1909 Model T Ford—probably the last Model T ever to be assembled. The 1909 "Tin Lizzie"—a twin lever job—came rolling down the assembly line at Ford Division's modern Mahwah, N. J., assembly plant surrounded by 1959 Ford cars.

Ford Division built the Model T to dramatize the 50th birthday of the famous Model T—the car that gave the company its start and shaped the automotive destiny of the world.

It was in October, 1908, at the historic Avenue plant in Detroit that the first Model T's were built. In the next 19 years, Ford built nearly 15,000,000 and offered them in any color the customer wanted—as long as it was black.

Since 1927, no assembly plant has produced a Model T until Oct. 23, when the high-roofed 1909 touring car came down the line, posing a strange contrast with the 1959 Ford Fairlane 500 ahead of it and the two-toned 1959 Ford Custom 300 behind it.

After coming off the final assembly line, the Model T—which is the American symbol of frugal operation—participated in an economy contest with a 1959 Custom 300 six-cylinder sedan. The cars sped around a circular course at the assembly plant to determine how much farther the new Ford could go on one-tenth of a gallon of gas.

In a similar contest in Detroit three weeks ago, a Model T averaged 13 miles per gallon and a 1959 Ford posted a 24 miles-per-gallon average.

At ceremonies marking the re-appearance of the Model T on the assembly line were Plant Manager E. L. Duquette, a veteran of Model T production days, and other Mahwah employees who helped assemble the original "universal car."

The parts for the Golden Anniversary Model T assembled today came from points all over the United States. Most of the body came from a Flint, Mich., furniture dealer, the wheels were re-constructed by a New Jersey firm, and fenders were made in San Luis Obispo, Calif.

The 1909 Model T, 2 1/4 feet taller and six feet shorter than the 1959 Ford, weighed 1,200 pounds and has a four-cylinder engine of only 22 horsepower. It had a price tag of $850 in 1909. The last Model T was produced in 1927.

The perfectly restored car will be donated to the Edison Institute for display in the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich.

Forest Conference Set November 12

Meeting Expected To Help Landowners In More Timber Production

The sources and types of aids to the small woodland owner which are to be discussed at a Small Forest Ownership Conference at Montgomery on November 12 were listed today by J. M. Stauffer, Alabama State Forester.

Stauffer said that Federal and State forestry organizations, the Alabama Extension Service, the paper and lumber industries and a number of consulting foresters stand ready to aid landowners throughout Alabama with forestry problems involved in producing more timber on woodlands of the state.

"These agencies, industries and businesses have made help and advice available during the past few years, but at the conference on November 12, we hope to secure from landowners themselves suggestions as to how aids to the forest owner can be made more effective," Stauffer said.

The State Forester said the Small Forest Ownership Conference is one of a series of such meetings being held throughout the United States this fall in an effort to increase forest production on small woodlands.

The Montgomery meeting will be open to the public with all persons interested in increasing small woodland production invited to attend. It will be held at the Whitley Hotel, November 12.

Changes In Your Social Security

Social security benefits are affected by changes in the national economy. Since the last benefit increase was put into effect in 1954, wages have increased by about 12 percent and prices by 8 percent. Congress felt that adjustments in the benefit scale were in order and voted an across-the-board increase in the amendments which the President signed into law on August 28, 1958. These benefits become effective at the beginning of 1959, and will be included in all benefit checks for January which will reach beneficiaries early in February.

The benefit increases for retired workers amounts to about 7 percent over the levels provided in the old law, with a minimum increase of $3.00 in the benefits payable to a retired worker who came on the rolls at or after age 65. Slightly smaller increases will be shown on the benefit checks of retired women workers who elected to retire at age 62 or at any age thereafter before reaching age 65, from $33 to $116, as compared with $30 to $108.50 under the old law. For women workers now getting retirement benefits the increased checks will range from $26.40 to $116 per month. This slightly lower minimum benefit is due to the fact that some women chose to retire before age 65.

Right now, only earnings up to a total of $4,200 in a year can be credited to a worker's social security account, beginning with 1959, earnings up to $4,800 in a year will be credited to a social security account. The largest monthly benefit payable to a retired worker with average yearly earnings of $4,800 will be $127. However, this maximum benefit cannot be reached for several years.

Beginning with January, employed persons will have one-fourth of 1 percent additional taken out of their pay; the tax rate will be 2 1/2 percent each for employee and employer. The rate for self-employed people will go up from 3-3/8 percent to 3-3/4 percent on their 1959 net earnings. The old rate, however, will apply to self-employment earnings for ed and colored. Such versatility, combined with reasonable cost, will assure a healthy future for aluminum in the automotive industry.

By JOHN SPARKMAN

Generally the 85th Congress, as a whole, is considered by many seasoned observers to have been a successful one. I agree.

Outstanding accomplishments came for housing, small business, Federal aid to education, liberalized old age benefits, and Congressional recognition of the need for a permanent UN police force.

It is generally conceded that the emergency housing bill which I introduced and pushed through Congress in record time was a decisive factor in reversing the downward slide of the economy. This legislation provided a great stimulus to the construction, real estate, and building trades industries, all of which are fundamental factors in our economy.

National syndicated columnists all over the country have labeled the 85th Congress as a small business Congress. First, the Small Business Administration was placed on a permanent status. Second, a substantial tax relief and adjustment bill was passed for the benefit of the small businessman. Third, the Small Business Investment Act was passed for the purpose of making it easier for small businesses to get long-term equity capital at reasonable interest rates.

As the Senate Small Business Committee Chairman, I was privileged to sponsor, to work, to fight, and to vote for these forward-looking small business bills. Another major accomplishment of the 85th Congress is the Hill-Elliott federal aid to education bill which should provide a substantial stimulus to education in Alabama. Approximately $1 million will be spent in Alabama during the fiscal year 1959.

A fourth major accomplishment of the 85th Congress is the formal recognition by both the House and the Senate of the need for a permanent UN police force. This is something which I have advocated for ten years. However, the Lebanon crisis was highly instrumental in impressing upon the Eisenhower Administration and the United States UN membership the need for a permanent UN police force.

I am especially pleased that Congress was able to enact amendments to both the social security program and the program of Federal assistance to states to help them in their programs of payments to the needy aged, needy blind, dependent children and the totally disabled.

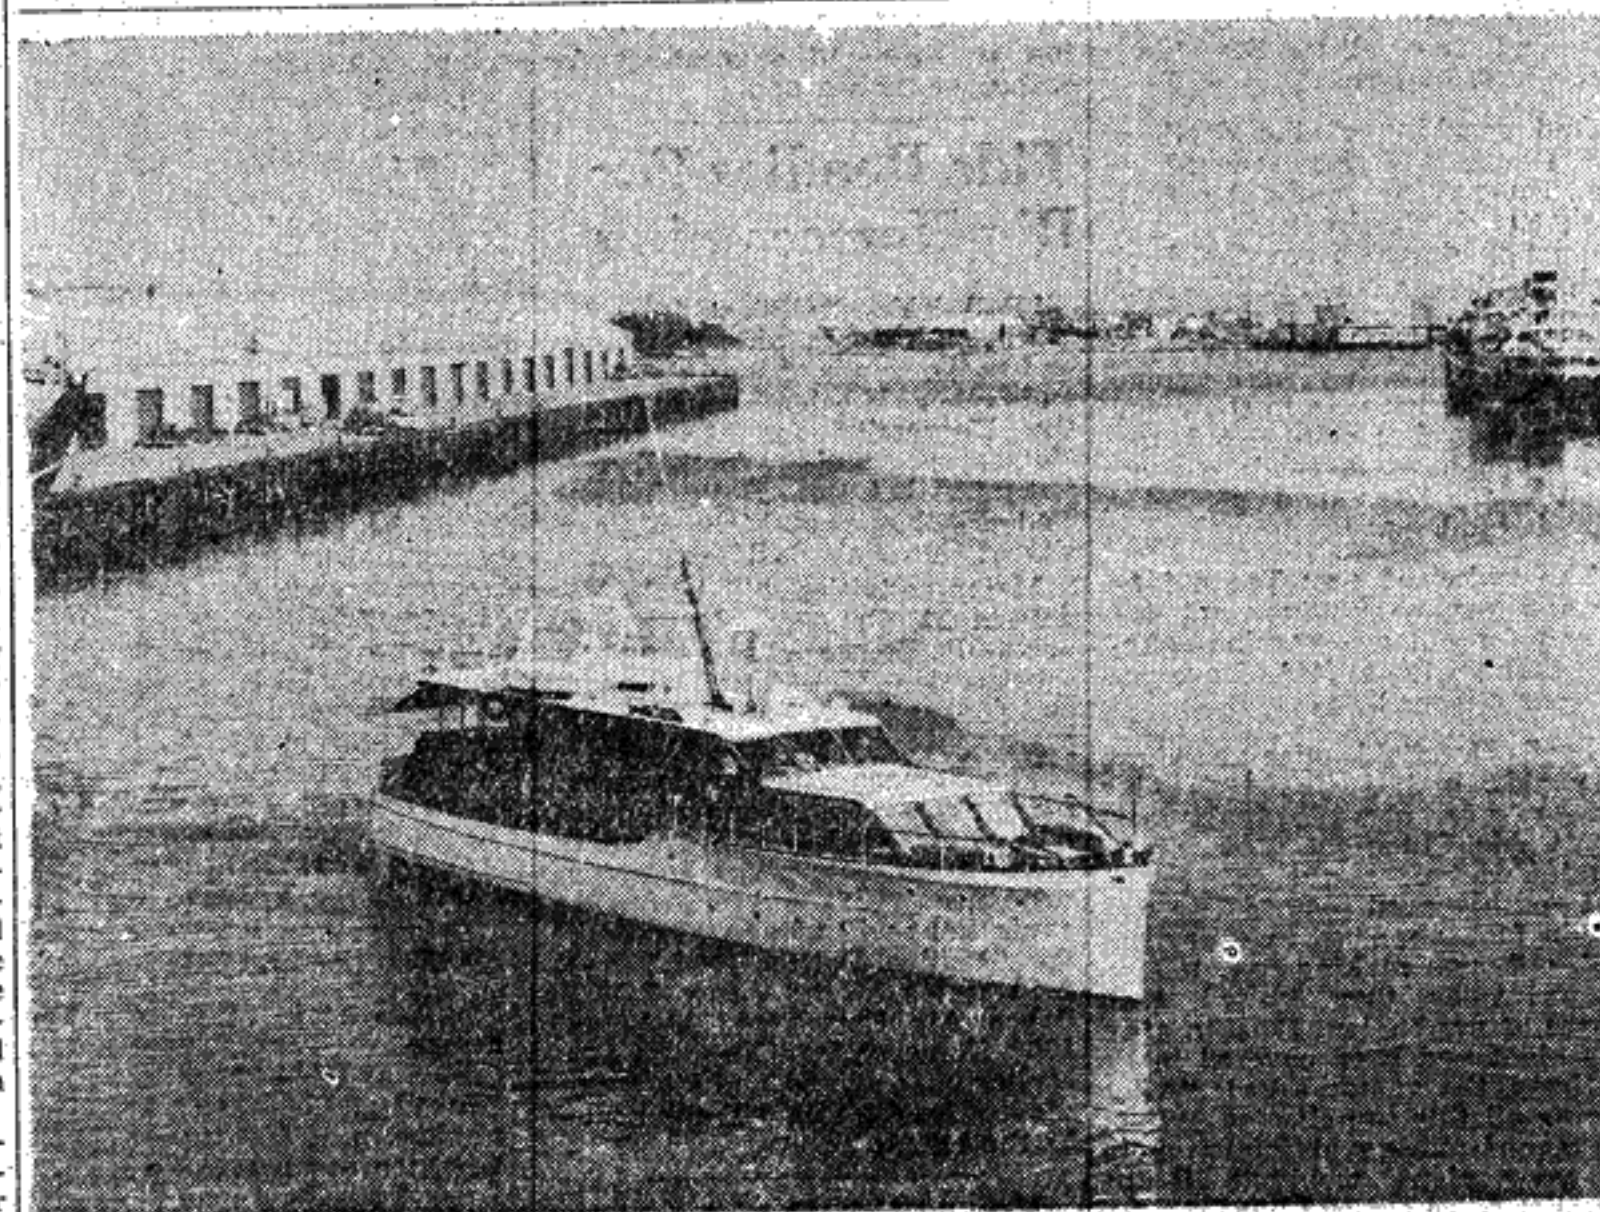

Under the social security amendments, social security checks received by Alabamians will be about 7 per cent higher starting February 3, 1959. The 12 million people nationally drawing retirement benefits will receive increases ranging from $3.00 to $7.50 per month. The maximum survivors benefit under the new law will be increased from $200.00 to $254.00 per month.

Vera Jo Parrish Is Bride

Paul Judson Carlton, Jr.

Marked by an early evening ceremony in Jackson Heights Church of Christ, Florence, Vera Jo Parrish and Paul Judson Carlton, Jr., said their marriage vows on Friday, October twenty-fourth, before an altar background of Southern huckleberry and Boston fern which accented basket arrangements of white gladioli and stock. Bouquets of Autumn blossoms with ribbon streamers marked the aisle.

Nuptial selections were by Mrs. Orville Werner, pianist, and Orville Werner, cousin of the bride, vocalist.

Mr. Michaud gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown of tulle over white lace was designed with fitted bodice and three-quarter sleeves of Chantilly lace. A matching lace apron-flounce complemented the front of the ballerina-length skirt and satin streamers from a back-bow extended to the hemline. Her fingertip veil of illusion cascaded from a coronet of pearls and her bouquet was of white rosebuds and tiny yellow mums. Antique pearl earrings adorned the "something old" to her bridal attire.

Nuptial music was by Mrs. L. S. Doster, organist, and Miss Sue Williams of Decatur, vocalist, and pledges were heard at half past five o'clock by Dr. Hudson Baggett, pastor of the church.

THE RECORD SHOWS that the modern Southland has what it takes to attract new, job-providing industries of all kinds.

During the ten-year period, 1948-1957, there were 3,299 major industrial developments along our lines alone—an average of more than one and one-fourth each working day for this period. These new developments just in the past six years represent a total investment of almost $3.5 billion and have created more than 119,000 jobs that didn't exist before.

All in the South can be proud of this fine record. Yet, this is no time to sit back and "rest on our oars." Now more than ever—in these times of lessened business activity everywhere—it behooves all who live and work in the Southland to make an extra effort to keep new, job-creating industries heading South and make sure that they stay happy in their "new home."

The more we all do to help continue without let-up the amazing industrial growth of the Southland, the more we all will benefit.

THE SPILLWAY

"IT'S TRICK OR TREAT tomorrow night... We're givin' out fair warnin'... And if your 'goodies' taste just right... You'll sure be glad next mornin'..."

THIS FAIR WARNIN' was given to Madam a couple hours ago by a prospective Halloween "spook" ... and immediately we started a stir-n-roll whirl which is ... at this very minute ... sending forth from our kitchen nice and splay and nutty and chocolate-y whiffs. As of the moment we think we'll be ready when the hour arrives ... Be seel'n ya ...

PROUD AS PUNCH ... That's what we were ... and we know you felt the same when our Florence State lovelies stepped before TV audiences on a yesterday-a-week-ago Birmingham program ... Marilyn Branyon and her court also looked squarely—and exquisitely—at us from the pages of the Birmingham P-H on a recent mornin' and ... all of a sudden ... we found our bacon 'n' eggs tasting like ambrosia ...

ON THE SELF-SAME television program with our Homecoming Royalty was Dottie McRae ... assistant editor of Flor-Ala (she's Dorothy and Allen's child ... y'know) and Billy Joe Camp ... sports editor for Florence State ... They were interviewed by Tom York ... who's also a Tritician ... We're still bursting buttons ...

AND WE DON'T intend to stop ... Frinstance ... our pride surged to the fore on last Sunday as we thumbed through the Commercial Appeal and ... in the Mid-South Industry column ... found in large type FORMER MEMPHIAN ROBERT O. HYDE ... Vice President ... Florence Firm ... Tremendous Strides ... (He's Florentine Bob now ... hubby of Mary Cats (Doss) and poppa to two adorable "little Hydies" ...) And from the same item we learned that Rufus Hibbett, Jr. ... (hubby of lovely Betty (Harrison) and poppa to their two ... Becky and Esther Jean ... now of Temple City, California) is also a VP in this same enterprising industry ... A sweeping howl from the Madam to these two charming families ... "top favorites" of all who know them well ...

DELIGHTFUL PLEASANTRIES of recent days ... The numerous "welcome home" courtesies extended to Alma Wood McNeely as she returns to her native hearth for an extended stay ... Here from her present home in El Paso ... she is bringing a customary sparkle and gaiety to the group of friends who welcome her with open arms ... She is at home with Ann and Richard Smith ... 753 Nellie Avenue ... where Ann was among the first to fete the delightful "returnee" ...

THEN THERE WAS The Town Club dinner party of Saturday soir when Albert Erskine ... here with his charming Marian from their home in Ormond Beach, Florida ... gathered together a group of gents and their ladies for an old-fashioned feast 'mongst friends ... 'Twas a treat gal event ... and one which we shall long remember ... The Erskines were week-end guests of his sister ... Mae Irvine ...

ANOTHER MEMORY-BOOK party was that hostessed by Myrtle Lovelace at her Central Heights home when she honored her charming niece ... Bobbie Lovelace ... bride-elect of David Col-lum ... with a gift tea on Saturday evening (25th) ... A tinge of Fall in the air ... a profusion of colorful blossoms ... to add extra-special touch ... delicious dainties abounding at the party table ... the contagious excitement of unwrapping gifts and the romantic uncertainty accompanying the date of David's arrival at home ... (He's with Uncle Sam's Navy ... and he's pushing for an early leave) ... Fifty guests ... more or less ... enjoying happy camaraderie ...

THOSE SEW-SEW GIRLS are getting an early start toward their winter's needle work ... The first meeting of the Autumn took place at Thalia Arnett's home on South Pine ... as close cronies digested a simply divine meal along with the this-and-that happenings of the past Summer ... 'Twas a gala getting-back-together ...

OF COURSE YOU KNOW that the hubby-and-wife group of young-marrieds ... who took off for a recent swing around New Orleans ... traveled by chartered bus ... There were the Marshall Smiths and the Kenneth Darbys ... the Allen Northingtons and the Byron Bowers ... the George McBurneys and the San Hardies and the Bill Mitchells ... More fun is reported than we have space to tell ...

TWO CASES OF INTEREST ... Many's the time we squint skyward as a plane passes overhead ... thinking that (for all we know) there goes Ruby (Darby) and Julian Case ... who're probably our section's most air-minded couple ... and certainly our most air-minded friends ... flying when business calls ... when vacation-time beckons ... when there's a yearnin' for family members who're only a few clouds away ... They keep us on our toes (and in our back-yards) time and time again ...

AND NOW ... CHEERIO and goodbye ... until more news comes through The Spillway ...

Let's Talk It Over
By SARA SAZE

Dear Mrs. Saze, Some of us have been wondering why you didn't tell Mrs. S. A. I. (October 16) to give her cross and fault-finding friend a dose of good old-fashioned religion.

Don't you think that's what she needs?

Several Readers.

Dear Readers, I think it's exactly what she needs and, if accepted, I think it would change her attitude 100%.

But I also think it's what Mrs. S. A. P. is already doing. Or trying to do. How else can you explain those daily kindnesses and courtesies?

You see, no matter how deeply we long to share our religion with others, it continues to remain a two-way deal. If the person in need is not ready to accept, we can't give. It can't be forced—like a cold "shot," or a spoonful of liquid from a bottle.

I think one end of the line is being taken care of efficiently. Whether or not it's effective will be up to Mrs. Grouch.

Dear Sara Saze, I have been gypped by a door-to-door salesman and altho' I got an address from him where he said I might reach him should I so desire, my husband insists I will only be laughed at if I try and that I will get nowhere in the end.

But I feel like it's idiotic not to even make a complaint. Why should I care if they laugh?

What is the sensible course to pursue?

A Bristler.

Dear Bristler, Bristle. You certainly have nothing to lose. It will take time but you'll get a lot of satisfaction from it. And perhaps your money back to boot.

Also, it's a step toward breaking up a racket and exactly what everyone should do under similar circumstances.

And, once you've started, go the whole way. Right up to the manufacturer of the article you thought you were purchasing, if necessary.

Dear Sara Saze, A member of my family has had his name changed legally. I would like to know if his birth certificate is altered so that there is no indication of his original name.

Just Curious.

Dear J. C., The practice varies from state to state and I am told that vital records are generally open to inspection only to persons who have direct, legitimate interest.

Homecoming week was pure bedlam—in addition to the general confusion there were a few tests that, it seems, just couldn't wait.

Oh, well. As far as I have been able to find out, this year's was the longest parade, at least the longest in a long time. And for my money, it was certainly one of the best—of course after seven or eight hours of folding paper napkins (there were about 25,000 of them in the queen's float), I may not have been overly clear minded when I saw the parade.

The winning float was entered by Kappa Mu Epsilon (math fraternity) and I can't remember what it looked like and can't find anyone else who does—that's ridiculous, but true Powers Hall won the dormitory decoration award with an enormous cardboard dam and a slogan—"dam up the Red Waves."

The pep rally—I'm going backwards again—must have been lots of fun. I didn't go because we had too many napkins to fold. If you have never folded napkins and stuck them through the holes in chicken wire, you haven't lived, believe me, it's a very broadening experience.

I have never seen the gym look as good as it did for this year's homecoming dance. There was no sign of the bleachers, the wall opposite the door was entirely covered with a sidewalk cafe scene, and the side walls were adorned by several varieties of dancers.

The bar from which cokes were sold was original looking, and the bandstand was backed with color-plattered paper.

The ball game, I think, was good. I was late getting there and by that time I was almost too numb to realize what was going on.

The half-time was really impressive. The queen, Marilyn Branyon, and her escort, Jimmy Burleson, were preceded on the field by the members of the court and their escorts—Shelba Wilson and Walter Johnson, Sue Cox and John Kitchens, Joyce Shrader and Dwight Coffey, Marilyn Wiley and James Tidwell, Jane Blair and Jack Haynes, Carolyn "Skipper" Carter and Jack DuPuy, Marlene Adkins and Doyle Pendley.

Forming an honor guard as the court entered the field was what used to be the Provost Corps. I think it's the Cadet Officers' Club now. Leaving the field, the court passed through an honor guard of Lionettes to the convertibles waiting to drive them around the field and back to their seats for the rest of the game.

And, as everyone said we would, we won.

Completion Trace Possible In 1966

Completion of the 450-mile historic Natchez Trace Parkway from Nashville to Natchez is possible by 1966 if Congress will vote between six and eight million dollars annually for the project.

That encouraging message was given delegates attending Thursday's annual meeting of the Natchez Trace Association.

Malcolm Gardner of Tupelo, superintendent of the Natchez Trace Parkway Division of the National Park Service, said complete restoration and hard-surfacing within the next eight years rests with the Congress.

Mr. Gardner said about 55 per cent of the needed parkway land has been acquired in Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi and that of 245 miles in various stages of construction, 125 miles are already paved. He also said that completion of the 102 mile paved link between Jackson and Highway 82 near Mathison in Webster County, via Kosciusko, is expected next spring. He said bad weather had delayed work on the remaining link between French Camp, northeast of Kosciusko and Mathison.

AUTOMOBILE DEALERS TO HOLD MEETING

New car and truck dealers throughout Alabama will gather in Birmingham for a "Rally Day for Profits" November 6 to discuss the retail pricing and profit picture in their business, with Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney of Oklahoma as keynote speaker.

The day-long meeting, to be held at the Tutwiler Hotel, will be sponsored by the Automobile Dealers Association of Alabama, Inc., which represents some 95 per cent of the state's franchised dealers, according to Mel B. Casler, of Birmingham, president.

College Entrance Exams Increase

Most 4-Year Schools To Require Tests Within
Next Decade Predicted

Use of college entrance exams is on the increase. Four out of five private colleges test applicants and one of four public colleges do. Within a decade just about every four-year college will use entrance exams.

The scores count a lot at certain highly selective schools. An extremely high score will almost assure the student a berth at many places. A particularly low grade will be likely to cut you out of consideration at a good many schools. But most colleges rely on other factors along with the test score—high school grades, class rank, principals' recommendations, extra curricular activities, etc.

There isn't any "passing" score. Each college judges the score in its own way. The exams are graded on a scale from 200 to 800 and a 500 score is average for college candidates. A score below 425 signals trouble. But you won't be automatically shut out at most places, especially if you're strong in other ways. Even at tough colleges where the average of those admitted may be around 625, some do get in with scores as low as 400.

At not-so-tough schools the average of successful applicants is about 525; but some get in with scores under 400. And at some colleges using the tests you can get in even if you score below 300.

Do coaching and cramming help to raise scores? Actually, they don't. Careful studies show that they barely affect scores, certainly not enough to warrant the hundreds of dollars some private coaching schools charge. But review of a particular subject during the year in which you are taking the exam may help.

How then do you prepare for the exams? By preparing all through your elementary and secondary schooling. Chances are that if you get good marks steadily, you'll do well in the exams.

Broaden your outside reading. Students who read widely all through their school years usually do well.

Consider taking the tests in your junior year. That gives you a chance to improve your score, and the score itself gives you a good idea of the type of college you ought to aim for.

Ministers Asked Publicize Empty Stocking Program

Rev. C. G. Martin, American Legion chaplain, urges all ministers in Colbert and Lauderdale Counties to give publicity to the Empty Stocking program being sponsored by the three local Legion posts.

"This program is for the needy of both counties and the participation of all the people is of paramount importance if the program is to be a success," he stated.

"If the pastors of the various churches will give the program publicity in their church bulletins and in announcements from the pulpit between now and Christmas, we of the Legion will be very grateful," the chaplain added.

Donations of new or used clothing and toys as well as non-perishable food will be accepted now.

Toys that need repair and clothing that will have to be cleaned or laundered should be brought in early so that these details may be attended to before the last minute.

People who have time may go to Empty Stocking Headquarters on West Third Street, Sheffield, Old Ritz Theatre building, and help repair and sort out the material that is beginning to come in.

Those who have no supplies other than money may give that and be assured that it will be spent wisely.

Army Pvt. Carl L. Ahonen, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob W. Ahonen, Route 1, Cloverdale, recently completed eight weeks of basic combat training at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Veteran's Widows To Get Payments

A widow's income has no bearing on her eligibility for compensation payments if her veteran husband died of a service-connected condition, Harley A. Smith, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Montgomery, said today.

Smith explained that considerable misunderstanding may exist on this point.

"Compensation," he added, "may be paid the widow of a veteran whose death was the result of his service. Her other income has no bearing on this payment."

"On the other hand," Smith emphasized, "income limitations do apply to VA death pension, which may be paid the widow of a wartime veteran who died of a non-service-connected condition."

About 28,000 persons die annually in home accidents, according to the National Safety Council, while half that number die each year in work accidents.

Bell Company Announces Two Alabama Units

Birmingham And Mobile To Be Headquarters For New Operation System

Southern Bell Telephone Company today announced that the administrative structure of its Alabama operations is being revised and that the new setup will go into effect Nov. 1.

The reorganization provides that the utility's 91 Alabama exchanges be grouped in two operating units. The present Birmingham Division will be re-designated the North Alabama Division with headquarters remaining in Birmingham. All other Southern Bell exchanges in the state will be incorporated in a new division to be known as the South Alabama Division. Headquarters city for the latter division will be Mobile.

Frank Newton, vice president and general manager of Southern Bell in Alabama, said the new setup will enable the telephone company to more efficiently serve the fast increasing number of telephone subscribers throughout Alabama.

The two divisions will be subordinate parts of the state organization which will be known as the Alabama Area of Southern Bell. Headquarters for the state offices will remain in Birmingham.

Total number of telephones in the state served by Southern Bell is approximately 632,000, an increase of 188,000 in the five year period since Sept. 1, 1953. The south division, in which the company serves some 244,000 telephones, will be composed of the present Mobile, Montgomery and Tuscaloosa districts. The three districts have a total of 43 exchanges. The north division will consist of three Birmingham districts, the Anniston and Decatur districts. It serves approximately 388,000 telephones in 48 exchanges.

THE ROYALTY OF HEARING AIDS— Zenith Corp. Introduces Exclusive Hearing Aids

An exclusive new self-adjusting sound plate for transmission of sound to the inner ear by bone conduction is incorporated in a new eyeglass hearing aid announced here today by Doris Droke, Zenith Hearing Aids, 123 South Court, Florence.

Nothing is worn in the ear, Doris Droke said. The self-adjusting sound plate built into the eyeglass hearing aid temple bar eliminates the need for cords, wires, ear buttons or molds.

Doris Droke stated that the new instrument, Zenith Radio Corporation's first bone conduction eyeglass model, offers greater efficiency and wearing comfort to the many thousands of hard of hearing who can benefit from a bone conduction aid.

For those with a purely conductive loss, usually due to middle or outer ear problems, the new Imperial hearing aid can provide exceptional results, she stated. It is ideal for those whose loss is mild to moderate or who require only part-time hearing help.

To conduct sound vibrations, the Zenith-developed sound plate fits snugly on the mastoid bone behind the ear, which in turn conducts sound to the inner ear.

Swivel mounting with a choice of two extensions makes the sound plate self-adjust to fit all head contours snugly and comfortably, she said. It provides the full contact with the mastoid bone necessary for efficient sound transmission.

About the size of a penny, the sound plate is designed so that it vibrates independently. Tent bar vibration common in conventional bone conduction eyeglass models is eliminated.

Trim, smartly styled temple bars encase the new hearing aid's precision engineered components—a transistor amplifier circuit, receiver, volume control, and microphone. Fingertip volume control allows the wearer to adjust sound to the exact loudness required for varying listening conditions.

The Imperial is powered by a tiny mercury battery in a handy swing-out compartment. There is also a spare battery compartment that provides the user with a source of reserve power at all times.

Styling of the temple bar allows it to be used with attractive spectacle frames. There is no need for factory adjustment since the purchaser buys only the temple bar from his Zenith dealer. All other services are performed by his eyeglass specialist.

The new aid brings to 12 the number of hearing aids in Zenith's current line, Doris Droke concluded. Suggested retail price for the new Imperial is $225.00.

Marines Offer Opportunities In Many Fields

Marine Recruiters stationed throughout the country are actually Aviation Mechanics, Aerologists, Electronics Technicians, Photographers, Infantry Chiefs, Supply and Administrative NCO's and other specialists.

The reason for this is that the Marine Corps require men in varied military positions to maintain the proficiency of its land, sea and air team.

Your local Marine Recruiter T/Sgt. Bill Ovey is by profession a Jet Engine Mechanic. When he completes his tour of Recruiting Duty he will return to his primary work.

Just as Marine Recruiters serve in various capacities in the Corps, young men and women who enlist now may have the opportunity to qualify for duty in the technical fields. Through Marine Corps technical schools they may learn a trade or profession that will benefit them during their military service as well as in later civilian life.

Sgt. Ovey will be pleased to talk to young men and women interested in learning more about the Marine Corps. He is located at the Post Office in Florence on Tuesday and Thursday from 9:00 a. m. until 2:00 p. m.

Florence State Caps Homecoming

Florence State rallied in the second half to come from behind and triumph over Troy by a 20-14 score and sent a homecoming crowd of some 5,000 fans home from Coffee Stadium with something to talk about.

Trailing 8-6 at half-time, the Lions fought back to go ahead 20-8, early in the second half.

The victory brought the season record to 3-2 as next week's encounter at Murfreesboro, Tenn., against Middle Tennessee looms on the schedule.

Junior Tailback Jack Redwine led the victors. The return to the lineup of Wingback Pearl Whitsett proved a blessing, plus the running of Fullback Carrel Daniel and Larry Yancey.

In the victory, the Lions were a different ball club from the one that took it on the chin, 40-7 the week before, from Southeastern Louisiana. The tackling and blocking being given a look at a real Lion team in action.

"A FAMILY THAT WORSHIPS TOGETHER — STAYS TOGETHER"

THE CHURCH FOR ALL
ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

No, he doesn't predict the future. From antiquity the prophets have been those who speak for God. In every generation they have explained His promises... pointed out His warnings.

Some men believed the prophets, and saw God's promises fulfilled. Others were skeptical—until their own bitter experience vindicated God's warnings.

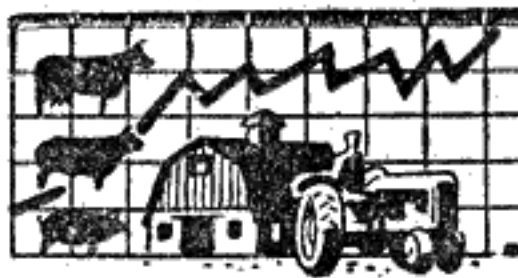

No wonder many thought the prophets were reading the future. To every thus saith the Lord a later historian had to add and it came to pass.

In a pulpit not far from your home there will stand next Sunday an earnest, thoughtful, consecrated man. He is a prophet! He can't predict whether you'll come to hear him. But he's preparing right now to speak for God—TO YOU. It is the One who calls the prophets who knows... whether you'll come... whether you'll believe... and all the future holds in store for you.

Freeze Meat To Assure Supply

Variety in meats for the family table can be insured through the use of home freezers and the locker plants.

A few years ago, for example, fresh pork was on the menu for only a limited time in the fall. Now fresh pork is frozen for use anytime, in hot or cold weather. Some of the more commonly frozen cuts include pork chops, tenderloins, shoulder or loin roasts, and sausage.

Country-killed pork, in danger of spoiling after a sudden weather change, may be quick-frozen whole, points out API Extension Hog Marketing Specialist Ray Cavender. This will kill a large portion of the harmful bacteria that cause spoilage and will delay growth of others, according to the specialist. The carcass can later be thawed, cut up, and processed in the usual manner.

If several pounds of fresh meat are to go into the home freezer at one time, Cavender suggests, it may be advisable to have the meat quick-frozen at a freezer locker plant. Overloading the home freezing unit will cause excessive moisture to collect inside the freezer and quality may be lowered before meat is frozen.

Cured pork, (ham, bacon, and shoulder) can also be frozen. This stops further aging and retains quality. Cavender cautions against storing pork too long in the freezer, as it tends to lose its fresh flavor after being frozen six to eight months. Always wrap meat tightly as possible to eliminate all air.

TVA Drawdown Of Lakes Started

TVA has started the annual drawdown of the levels of its multiple-purpose lakes to bring them to flood control elevations by the end of the year. In lowering the lake elevations, the stored water will be used through the turbines to generate electricity insofar as this is possible, in order to avoid spilling or wasting the water, TVA said.

Reed A. Elliot, Chief Water Control Planning Engineer, said that TVA has available approximately 12 million acre-feet of flood storage space when all multiple-purpose reservoirs are drawn to their flood control elevations.

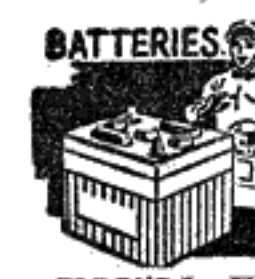

The extent of the drawdown on tributary reservoirs will depend on rainfall conditions and electric power demand between now and January 1, Mr. Elliot said. The mainstream reservoirs are expected to reach the following elevations above sea level around January 1: Fort Loudoun, 807; Watts Bar, 735; Chickamauga, 675; Hales Bar, 632; Guntersville, 593; Wheeler, 550; Pickwick Landing, 408. Wilson reservoir is expected to reach elevation 504.5 about December 15 and Kentucky, elevation 354 about December 1.

"The drawdown of all tributary storage reservoirs and all but three mainstream reservoirs has started," Mr. Elliot said. "Fort Loudoun Lake drawdown will start by November 1 and Hales Bar and Wilson Lakes by December 1."

A typical hurricane will cover an area about 200 miles in diameter. However, the diameter may vary from 100 to 500 miles, according to the Navy's "Hurricane Hunters."

Egg Production Can Be Helped

If you've had trouble lately getting your hens to produce plenty of eggs, you may be using improper management practices.

Leading poultry consultants in major egg producing areas were asked recently to list the most common management faults found in laying flocks. API Extension Poultryman S. L. Davis has compiled a summary of the survey and has listed 20 common poor management practices.

Some signs of poor management include dirty water troughs, insufficient water and/or feeder space, not enough nesting materials, and improper ventilation. Improper ventilation, explains Davis, is usually caused by chicken houses being built too tightly.

If feeders are too full or improperly adjusted, feed may be wasted.

If you don't look for parasites, lice or mites may build up enough to cause a drop in production. Many poultrymen don't follow a vaccination program. And sometimes poultrymen tend to give too much medication to their birds, or to give wrong medications due to lack of competent disease diagnosis.

Other causes of low production include letting caked or dirty litter stay in the house, cannibalism caused by crowding or lack of feed or water space, weeds or tall-growing crops blocking air from poultry houses, and inadequate grit and shell hoppers. Eggs on the floor are caused by not housing birds as soon as they begin to lay, or by failure to install nests early.

Low egg production may also be traced to not enough nests or nests hung too high, failure to gather eggs often enough, failure to keep feed consumption and production records, improperly stored and cleaned eggs, and hens roosting in nests.

Production Of Feeder Pigs Is Profit Maker

Ten brood sows on five acres of land can increase the net farm income by $1,000 a year.

How? Extension Hog Marketing Specialist Ray Cavender said feeder pig production is proving to be a good enterprise for farmers who don't produce enough grain to finish out hogs to market weight. Many producers have found that two litters per sow per year, with the pigs sold at 40 to 60 pounds of weight, amount to a net income of $100 per sow per year.

Good feeder pigs are in demand throughout the year by producers who carry on large finishing operations. Feeder pig production could be a profitable supplementary enterprise for a farmer whose main farming interest lies in dairy or beef cattle, sheep, or broilers.

Gardens Need Compost Pile

This is a good time of the year to start a compost pile, according to API Extension Horticulturist John Bagby. First, select some suitable place. An abandoned manure pit or a hog pen which still has boards around it are equally good choices.

Bagby said leaves, grain straw, molded hay, and corn shucks are a few of the materials that can be used. Do not add diseased plants or weeds on which seed have matured. Put down about 12 or 14 inches of dry material and then add a liberal layer of chicken or stable manure. Alternate layers until the pile is from four to six feet high. If you do not have manure available you can use commercial fertilizer, such as 6-8-6 or 8-8-8. Keep the compost moist at all times.

Foot-High Ladino Is Pretty Sight

Cherokee Farmer Uses Orchard Grass Mixture For Good Grazing

California ladino clover a foot high was a pretty sight on the Cherokee County farm of E. L. Sanford last July, O. N. Andrews, A.P.I. Extension agronomist, recalls.

The pasture was on a hillside, but the soil was productive. Sanford had mixed orchard grass with the ladino for cattle grazing, according to Andrews. Orchard grass furnishes high-quality cool-season grazing; but, most important, the mixture prevents the ladino from bloating cattle. At the time Andrews saw the ladino and orchard grass stand, sows were in the pasture.

"Sanford didn't have a secret formula for growing this combination of ladino and orchard grass," Andrews declared. "Any farmer can have good ladino pasture by using tested production practices."

Andrews recommends starting with good productive land. Generally, well-drained, moist land along a stream is best, but productive upland is satisfactory. Lime according to soil test. Ladino clover grows best when the soil is slightly acid.

Prepare a smooth, firm seedbed by breaking, disking, and harrowing. After a good rain has settled the seedbed, plant certified California ladino seed, about five pounds to the acre of double in-cultured seed. If planting cover with grasses, use two pounds per acre, Andrews advises.

Drill or broadcast seed and firm and cover with a cultipacker, covering seed about one-fourth inch. Start grazing when plants are three to four inches high.

Onion Flavor In Milk Preventable

Wild onion and garlic season is just ahead. And people don't like milk with onion or garlic flavor, O. N. Andrews, extension agronomist, reminded Alabama milk producers.

To control these weed pests, use one pound of 2,4-D amine or low volatile ester per acre in about 20 gallons of water. Add four table spoons of detergent as a wetting agent if the amine form is used.

In an oat field, spray when oats are about six inches high. Saturate plants and keep cows off the area for a week to 10 days. The 2,4-D chemicals will not harm livestock but weed control will not be achieved if the plants are grazed down right after spray is applied.

To control garlic or onions in clover-grass permanent pastures, use two pounds of 2,4-D per acre, Andrews said. One application at this rate will not harm established dallis, bermuda, or other perennial grasses. Well established white clover will be injured but will recover in most instances. Do not use 2,4-D on crimson clover, vetch, or other annual legumes.

POLIO IN ALABAMA

Alabama's polio count for 1952 stood at 31 as of October 11. The State Health Department said that 44 cases were listed during the same period last year.

All but one of the 1952 cases have been paralytic polio. The Health Department said that only four of the victims of paralytic polio had received any Salk vaccine. Of this four, only one had received all three doses. The non-paralytic case is that of a seven year old boy who had received three polio shots.

More than half of the pedestrians killed annually in auto accidents reportedly jaywalked or acted in an otherwise unsafe manner, according to the National Safety Council.

A Salute to TALLAPOOSA COUNTY

Center of Alabama's Important TEXTILE INDUSTRY

Renowned as the site of the famous Battle of Horseshoe Bend (now a state park), where Gen. Andrew Jackson "broke the back" of the great Creek Indian Nation, Tallapoosa is also the textile center of the state.

Here the hum of spindles and looms means payrolls for thousands of Alabamians, while others earn livelihoods from agriculture and industry.

Waters of the Tallapoosa River, impounded by impressive Martin Dam, fan out into a lake of some 740 shore line miles, affording excellent fishing and recreational facilities.

Named for this historic river, Tallapoosa was designated a county in 1832, with Dadeville as its seat of government. Alexander City has long been headquarters for the textile industry.
