Herter Subs For Dulles In Top Post

foreign policy at a crucial time in Western dealings with Russia over the future of Germany and security in Europe. John Foster Dulles has held the reins of diplomacy and power in the conduct of international affairs in his own hands more completely than any other secretary of state in modern times. He has a type of cancer which is highly malignant, doctors said Saturday, but one which can be controlled for several years.

They said the cancerous tumor represents a spread from the original colon cancer for which Dulles underwent an operation in 1956. The doctors said that while the outlook is ultimately grave, the further spread of the cancer can be kept under control for several years in many instances.

Treatment for "adenocarcinoma," a glandular cancer of the type Dulles is afflicted with, includes such measures as X-ray and chemotherapy, the latter involving the use of certain drugs derived from nitrogen mustard, a World War One war gas. Radioactive gold may also be used by injection into the abdominal cavity.

Patterson In Fight To Regain Control of Parks

Hits At Concessions Let Out
During Folsom Administration

Gov. John Patterson has promised to fight for the people's rights in regaining state control of public parks, lakes and recreation areas now under long-term lease to private speculators.

"We do not expect an easy fight in our attempt to eliminate the waste and squandering of your tax money," the governor stated. "As I said during my campaign many times, whenever you try to do something for the people, it is an uphill fight all the way."

"But I want to assure you that we are going to stay in there fighting," Mr. Patterson declared.

The governor's statement was prompted by court action contesting State's attempt to cancel a 10-year lease to Tuscaloosa County Public Lake. During the last administration, concession rights at the lake were leased for a term of 10 years with a right to renew for five more years.

Road Bond Bill Passed By State Legislature; To Adjourn Friday

Efforts To Meet Visiting Problem At Hospital Made

Cooperation Of Public
In Meeting Emergency
Is Urgently Requested

An emergency exists at Eliza Coffee Memorial Hospital that only the public can solve, R. C. Barnes, hospital administrator, stated following a joint meeting of committees representing the Board of Governors and the doctors on the hospital medical staff.

As the result of the extensive construction now under way at the hospital, making access to the hospital buildings almost impossible except for two entrances remaining available for receiving patients and entry of physicians, nurses and other personnel, an already existing problem of hospital visiting has been aggravated until a situation has arisen that makes care of the ill near impossible. It has been pointed out that the halls are being jammed with visitors, many of whom have no ties with the patients and as a result merely create a problem for the nurses in their efforts to care for them.

In an effort to meet the seriousness of the situation, the ministers of the county are being contacted and asked to request that the members of their congregations remain away from the hospital and plan their visits when the patient has returned home and company may be of value. In addition, a series of articles is to be published pointing out the problem and the rules and regulations that have been adopted and are designed to make it possible for the patients to receive the care and protection to which each is entitled.

It is recognized by the Board of Governors that certain members of the family of the patient must be considered and in the regulations this is recognized. It is also recognized that infants and children need their parents at their bedside and this, too, is provided for in the new rules. The visiting, it is also stressed, must be limited to members of the family during the present emergency and, of course, only during the visiting hours as now designated.

Rules And Regulations

In the appeal for assistance by the public in general, the medical staff joins with the Board of Governors and the Administration, requesting close observance of the few, brief but necessary rules that have been adopted:

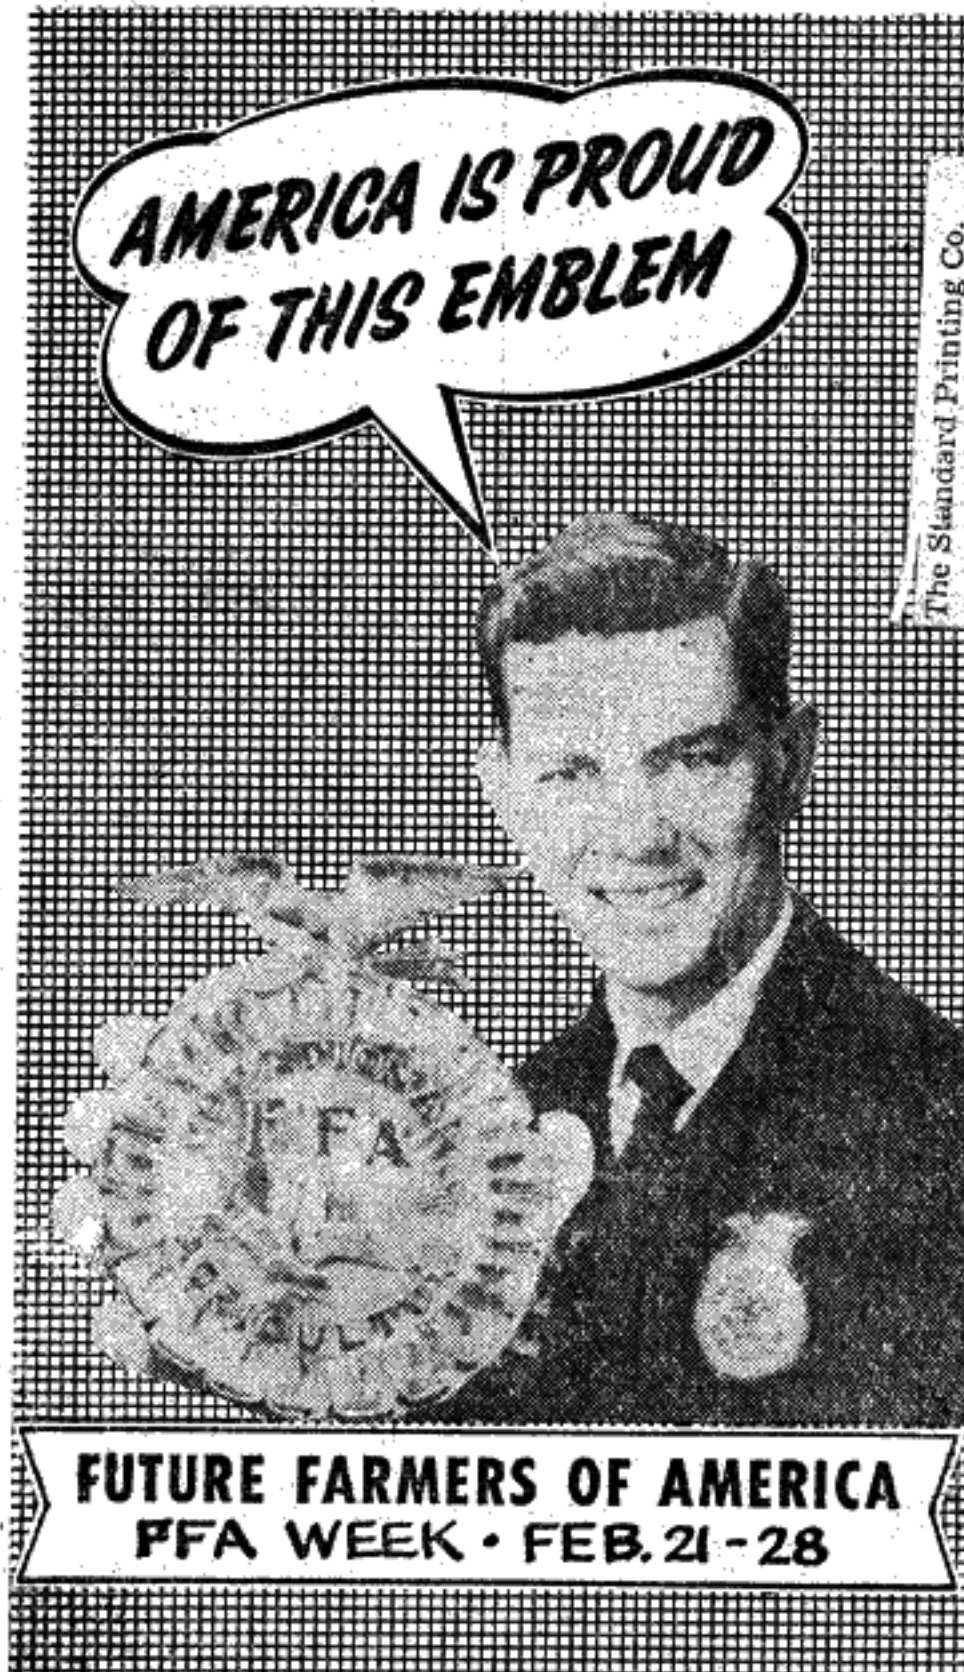

1. Visiting will be limited to immediate members of the family.
2. One member of the immediate family or a designated friend will be permitted to stay at the bedside of a surgical patient immediately before the operation and for the first 24 hours following the operation.

3. Two members of the family will be permitted at the bedside of infants and children at all times.
4. Visitors will not be permitted to stand in the halls.

5. Strict observance of the visiting hours: 2:00 p. m. to 4:00 p. m. and from 7:00 p. m. to 8:00 p. m. Except in the cases stated above, no one will be allowed at the bedside of patients at other hours.
6. Since only two visit at any one time, the visits shall be reserved for members of the family.

7. The hospital office can give a current report of the patient's condition at all times. If members of the immediate family require more specific information, they are directed to contact their physician at his office.

BLOUNTSVILLE FFA MEMBER NAMED "FUTURE FARMER"

James Brindley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Van Brindley of Blountsville, is a member of the Blountsville FFA Chapter and has been selected Alabama's Future Farmer of the Year, according to T. L. Faulkner, State Supervisor, Vocational Agriculture.

For being the outstanding farmer of the nearly 15,000 Future Farmers in Alabama, James will receive the $300 Turner E. Smith Educational Award and the special Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity trophy.

The Future Farmers of America is a national organization of, by, and for farm boys who are studying vocational agriculture in the public high schools of the nation. Local chapters of this fine organization in Lauderdale County are active in all county high schools. In charge are the following vocational agricultural advisors:

William B. Hagood, Waterloo; Norman G. Spillers, Central; A. A. Thorne, Rogers; James Hankins, Lexington, and C. J. Pennington, Rogersville. Agricultural instructor of Veteran Training at Rogersville is Rex Roberson.

As America's future farmers, these young men hold in their minds and hands the progress that this community and nation may make in the years to come, because a prosperous and productive agriculture is the very foundation of our American standard of living.

The Future Farmers of America will hold the attention of the nation February 21 - 28 as they celebrate National FFA Week.

There are 380,000 FFA members in more than 9,000 chapters throughout the United States, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico. Alabama has approximately 15,000 members in 263 High School departments of Vocational Agriculture.

Future Farmers choose the week of George Washington's birthday each year for the observance of National FFA Week. Although usually recognized as a Revolutionary War General and our first President, Washington's first love was the farm he called Mount Vernon. There he was one of the first in the nation to practice contour planting, crop rotation, fertilization, and other soil conservation and improvement methods. It was more than a century after his death that general use of these sound agricultural practices were advocated on the American farm.

According to T. L. Faulkner, State Supervisor of Vocational Agriculture, each of the Alabama chapters have made plans for some special activities to celebrate this (See National, Page 2, Col. 3)

Bill Introduced Prevent Seizure Voting Records

The State Senate wrote the new administration's highway bond issue bill into law Tuesday after shoving aside the embattled school tax measure. Both Senate and House then voted to adjourn the special session of the Legislature on Friday, less than three weeks after it began.

Both houses were in session Wednesday and today for the purpose of passing local bills before adjourning. Action on the schools tax bill was definitely out for this session.

The highways bills, three of them passed by the House and approved by the Senate, were passed and sent to Governor Patterson on the fifth legislative day of the special session, maintaining a record for quick passage. A threatened filibuster that could have delayed the road bill failed to develop since it was aimed at the school tax bill. This bill would, by constitutional amendment, allow any county to levy an additional five-mill property tax for education. The state's constitution presently limits such tax to 7 1/2 mills and only where this ceiling has been established by local amendment.

Black Belt legislators favor the present school tax structure under which school moneys are sent to Montgomery to be reapportioned to the various counties. The school tax amendment is almost similar to the one rejected by voters in 1955 and it was a supporter of the amendment that moved to kill it for this session rather than risk a filibuster that would jeopardize other bills. The Senate had already been maneuvered into a time-killing debate on the subject of high school football by Sen. L. K. Andrews of Bullock County, an opponent of the bill.

The road bond issue was Gov. Patterson's No. 1 item for legislative consideration and the primary reason for the special session. He asked for authority to borrow money to match an expected $326 million in Federal funds during the next four years.

While the road bond issue was before the Senate the House Judiciary Committee set the stage for final passage of a bill that would prevent Federal agents from securing Alabama voting records.

● Every person in Lauderdale county should appoint himself or herself a committee of one to aid the officials of Eliza Coffee Memorial Hospital in their appeal for assistance in correcting the terrible situation caused by the constant flood of visitors who, apparently, are making the proper care of the patients an almost impossible task. New rules have been adopted to protect the patients and it is urged that every person with a relative or friend in the hospital abide by the rules to the letter. In so doing, your loved ones will be returned to you much sooner. Reserve visiting of friends until the patient has returned home and then is in need of visitors.

● It is reported that the following letter has just been received by the U. S. Treasury Department: "Dear Sirs: I've just found out that I've been working all day Monday and most of Tuesday to pay you folks. I just want to let you know that from now on I ain't gonna work on Monday and Tuesday."

● Two men were walking down the courthouse steps after one had been divorced. "Thank heaven, that phase of my life is over," said the newly unwed. "I never liked that woman." "Well, then, how did she rope you in?" was the surprised question of his friend. "I guess she just wanted me more than I wanted her," was his explanation.

● Cosmetics, it is pointed out, are a woman's way of keeping a man from reading between the lines.

● In the last 30 years, as we look back, we find that men are doing without a lot of things that seem most important. For example; garters, collar buttons, vests, spats, detachable collars, detachable cuffs, derbies, walking canes—and, in summer, hats and ties. And, too, heavy underwear, suspenders and in many cases, undershirts are being abandoned. What about spats? Although we frown on them as being rather affected, there are many cold mornings as the breezes blow across your ankles, that spats would be most helpful. (How did we get off on this subject?)

● While waiting to be served in a fashionable restaurant, a customer tied his napkin around his neck in bib fashion. This distressed the manager so much that he told the waiter to indicate to the customer as tactfully as possible that this simply was not done in this restaurant. "Oh, about $200," answered the mother. The little girl thought it over and then said: "That's not so much when you think how long one would last."

● A proud grandmother was out for a Sunday stroll with two visiting grandsons when she met an old friend. "My, what handsome boys!" exclaimed the friend. "How old are they?" "Roy Rogers here is four and Maverick is six."

Lauderdale And Hardin Countians In Road Meet

Judges Flynt And Phillips Pledge
All-Out Aid To Highway Project

Full cooperation was expressed by officials of Hardin County, Tenn., Thursday night in a meeting with Lauderdale County representatives interested in the establishment of an adequate highway between Waterloo and Pickwick Dam along the shores of the Tennessee River.

Upon the invitation of Grady George, Savannah businessman and owner of a motel and restaurant at Duncan's Landing, members of the Waterloo Lions Club, headed by President Berl Harrison, and Lauderdale County officials including Judge Estes R. Flynt and County Commissioner Dave Ticer, joined with a group from the adjoining Tennessee county to enjoy a delicious wild duck dinner and discuss matters of mutual interest.

The discussion was opened with a statement of the purpose of the meeting by Mr. Harrison who presented Harold May of The Florence Herald staff who told of the possibilities of securing this long dreamed-of highway at this time. He pointed out the economic value of this project, designated as the Alabama - Tennessee Scenic Highway, to both counties and its potentials as a tourist attraction. He stressed the need of opening up the area of West Lauderdale County and Southeast Hardin County to development and stated that both sections now are truly "dead ends" but with vast possibilities for prosperous development.

"Although possibly costly as road building in general is considered today, the increase of tax values in both counties and the taxes, as well as profit, that would be left in the two counties by tourists, would soon more than pay the cost of construction of this highway," Mr. May said.

Judge Phillips Speaks
County Judge Boyce Phillips of Hardin County, who headed the Tennessee delegation, concurred in pointing out the dire need for the proposed highway and further stressed the importance of this inlet to Lauderdale County in the development of full production by the pulp mill of the Tennessee River Pulp and Paper Co., at Counce, Tenn., on which construction is scheduled to begin March 1.

Judge Phillips pledged his full cooperation in every effort to bring about the construction of the proposed highway at the earliest possible date and stated: "You can be assured that we of Hardin County will meet you, of Lauderdale County, half way and work with you wholeheartedly in bringing about the establishment of this scenic highway."

Judge Flynt explained the difference in the highway construction set-up employed in Lauderdale County as compared to that of Hardin County, which had been explained by Judge Phillips and Highway Commissioner Jones Barker. He said that the people of Lauderdale were most enthusiastic about this project and he pledged his complete cooperation in every way possible to see that this highway became a reality. "We know what it would mean to us and we know what it will mean to you and by working together we can prove its value to those who hold the purse strings," Judge Flynt said.

Meeting Planned
A. D. Ray, Jr., chairman of the organization committee for the highway association, outlined the plans now being made to complete the organization of the Alabama-Tennessee Scenic Highway Association, and announced that the organization meeting would be held at the Waterloo High School auditorium Thursday night, March (See Lauderdale, Page 2, Col. 3)

Since 1931, when he became an Elk, Mr. Wisely's interests have been centered chiefly on the philanthropic programs of the Order. His achievements brought him steady advancement through the ranks of the Order in California, then to high positions in the Grand Lodge, and culminated in his election to the Grand Exalted Rulership at the Grand Lodge Convention in New York City in July, 1958.

FFA—A Great Organization

FFA Week, which annually includes the birth date of George Washington, commemorates the establishment of a farm youth organization in 1928 that has grown in recent years into one of the most important groups of its kind in existence. Actually it would be no exaggeration to state that the progress and security of the nation rests in the minds and hands of these young men because a productive agriculture is the very foundation of our American prosperity and standard of living.

America's population and the world's is undergoing tremendous growth. As this growth increases the farm population decreases. The temptation of more lucrative pay in industry has lured many young people away from the farms in addition to which is the fact that mechanized farming has placed the small farm operator at a disadvantage.

FFA members are taught through chapter participation in many projects that farming is a basic industry and one that can and does pay a good living. Through scientific methods they learn that a farm does not have to be a large one to support a family and provide an income that is better than a living. The adaptation of farms for certain crops is determined through soil and other analyses so that the maximum benefits are obtained and so that in the broad sense there will be enough farm products to supply future needs.

FFA members are also taught community service through active participation in all types of activities; they learn to speak in public; they learn the basic principles of marketing; how to manage a farm and figure profits and loss; and how to assume the responsibilities of citizenship.

Leaders in agriculture realize today that prosperity cannot come to the few. It must be an over-all prosperity in order to establish a good agricultural economy. Today this great effort is represented in the unity of more than 380,000 members in more than 9,000 chapters in the United States, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico. Alabama has more than 15,000 members in 263 high school departments.

Today we salute a great organization.

Let Us Remember

This Sunday members of the local National Guard will participate in the annual Heart Fund Drive in the Tri-Cities area. Public cooperation is urged in this vitally worthwhile project.

Each year, on February 22, it is the custom of National Guardsmen throughout the nation to observe Muster Day in honor of George Washington. It is always a proud occasion for these 470,000 patriotic citizen-soldiers whose heritage is great in the annals of American history.

This year the Guard may be more than proud of its record because it has reached the pinnacle of its training and readiness. It is better equipped, trained and organized than ever before, a fact that is recognized by the Department of Defense.

Today the National Guard is conducting all of its training on the unit level. This is possible because over 80 per cent of the Guard's enlisted men are basically trained and qualified in their various military specialties.

This newspaper believes that Muster Day should be more than a day set aside by National Guardsmen. We believe that it should be an occasion for citizens everywhere to honor the National Guardsmen themselves; to acknowledge the great debt they owe to the men of their oldest fighting organization.

We tend to forget our National Guard during years of peace. Even now many of us have forgotten what World War II should have proved once and for all: that National Guardsmen are capable of meeting any challenge that faces them.

The Guard's participation in World War II is a perfect example of the unyielding spirit of free citizens who take up arms in the defense of their nation. And there were dark hours during the war when it was that spirit alone which turned the tide of battle.

Today—on Muster Day, 1959—the spirit remains. Week in week out, while most of us are enjoying the leisure of hours after work and of weekends, 470,000 Army and Air National Guardsmen are giving unselfishly of their time in the most vigorous training program of their organization's history. They know that in modern warfare a citizen must be not only willing, but prepared to fight as well.

They go about their tasks quietly and unobtrusively and we seldom know they are there. Every once in a while disaster will strike locally and they will go into action again, saving lives, guarding property and restoring order, and we read about their deeds and we praise them. And then we forget; we take them for granted.

Today, let us remember. Let us honor the past contributions of our National Guardsmen and acknowledge their present-day efforts.

We are much safer for having them.

A Matter Of Climate

It can't be done, of course—but it would give us all an eye-popping realization of just how dependent we are on oil if, for just one day, oil products were delivered to the door, like milk.

That job would take a huge army of strong-backed delivery men and a vast fleet of trucks. For the average family of four, more than eight gallons of oil products would have to be delivered, to meet the needs of that single day.

And this is only the beginning. For instance, the year 1965 is just around the corner as history goes. By that year there will be 18 million more people living in this country. There will be some 14 million more cars and trucks on the road. There will be 12 million more homes. Industrial activity is scheduled to increase by a mighty 33 per cent.

That means we will need more oil—almost incredibly large quantities of it. To provide that oil, the economists now say, the industry will have to invest close to $80 billion. Yes, $80 billion—to find oil, and to build the equipment for refining and distributing it.

Oil faces a Herculean job. But it's a job that will be done—if the industry can continue to operate in a free competitive market, and in an economic climate that spurs men to take risks and freely spend their energies and resources on progress, in hope of profit.

E. T. Stovall Talks To Exchange Club

Discussion Of Proposed Change In Government Of Florence Viewed

E. T. Stovall, who is vitally interested in the proposal now before the people of Florence relative to a change in the form of the city's governing body, was the guest speaker at the Exchange Club meeting at Hotel Reeder Tuesday noon. Don Holt had charge of program arrangements and presented the speaker.

Mr. Stovall opened his remarks by stating his interest in Florence and his desire to be of some help in fashioning its future. He said he had been a resident of the city for the past 11 years and during that time had come to realize that the rapid growth of the city required full-time governmental management.

In a review of the growth of the city's finances during the past 10 years, Mr. Stovall gave interesting data that reflected the wise management that the part-time city officials had given. He praised their efforts but stated that each of the present officials as well as others who have served as city commissioners would be the first to agree that a change is necessary.

Giving the Florence League of Women Voters credit for bringing this matter to the attention of the voters, Mr. Stovall said that everyone now feels that the time is ripe for a change. He said that Florence would increase in population to 15,000 within the next 10 years and that we should make plans for the type of government that will adequately serve the people.

Mr. Stovall said that at present some 14 petitions are being circulated by a group of which he is a member asking that the voters be given the opportunity to approve a strong, full-time mayor and two part-time commissioners as their form of government. He suggested that the mayor be paid a salary of not less than $10,000 per year and that commissioners receive $2400 a year. He outlined his belief that this form of government would best serve the City of Florence and stressed the belief that the cost of such a government would be less than any change now proposed. He said that the three officials, properly designated, would be elected each four years, thus cutting the cost of elections to one-fourth. This, in itself, he said would add much to the general fund.

Pointing out that only five of the cities in Alabama that have tried city manager form of government now operate under that system, Mr. Stovall estimated that the cost of such government would be at least double that of a full-time mayor. He used Dothan as his example where the city manager receives $12,000 and the full-time commission receives comparable salaries.

It was announced that Miss Nan Bailes had been selected by the club to represent it in the coming Service League Follies of 1959.

Veterans Having G. I. Loans Should Beware Of Loans

Veterans who get behind in payments on their G. I. home loans should check carefully any offers strangers may make to supply the delinquent payments if the veteran will "sign here."

Neil R. Smart, Acting Manager of the VA Regional Office in Montgomery, warned veterans to check immediately with their mortgage holder to determine whether or not the offer is legitimate.

In some parts of the nation, he said, a flim-flam practice called "milking" has been revived. An offer to pay delinquent installments is made if the veteran will sign an "acknowledgement." Later the veteran learns he has signed a deed and must "buy" his property back at a higher price.

In another version, entire neighborhoods are canvassed to learn which veterans are having trouble meeting their G. I. loan payments. Then a "salesman" will offer each veteran a nominal amount for his equity, plus the privilege of buying another home in a lower cost development.

His signature is secured on a deed giving the right of possession in 60 days.

Later he is advised that no lower cost homes are available and he no wfaces eviction from the home he has sold.

These practices, though the intent is unethical, are conducted in such a manner as to make them legal, Smart pointed out.

I OWE MY LIFE TO A STRANGER

"She rang my doorbell one April morning six years ago as I was Spring cleaning. She was one of 2,000,000 volunteers helping to raise funds for the American Cancer Society's Crusade. I gave what I could and hoped she'd leave quickly so I could get on with my work. But she said she wanted to tell me some facts for my own good, about cancer.

"She said that many cancers are curable if detected early and treated promptly, and that every adult in our family should have a health checkup every year. . . no matter how well we may feel. She left me a pamphlet listing cancer's seven danger signals which I got around to reading a few days later. I was startled to see that a symptom I'd been ignoring. . . hoping it would 'go away' . . . was on that list! The pamphlet said 'if your signal lasts longer than two weeks, go to your doctor to learn if it means cancer.'

"You can bet I did just that! My doctor found I did have cancer and I had my operation a week later.

"My doctor says I owe my life to the fact that I came to him in time. But I'll always feel I owe my life to a stranger."

For your copy of life-saving facts about cancer, write to the Unit of the AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY in your community.

Let's Talk It Over

By SARA SAZE

Dear Mrs. Saze, How do people decide what they want to start into when they are grown and about to finish school? I will graduate in June from high school and my folks ask me all the time what I want to study to be when I go to college. They look like they think I ought to pop right out with the answer which I can't because I don't have the first idea.

They tell me I ought to have made up my mind long ago, and that maybe they can't get me registered now. And then they start and mention medicine and law and business administration, and I am more confused all the time.

I know two other boys who can't make up their minds, either. Now, I don't think I'm ever going to know what to do. So what can I tell my folks, and what can I do about it?

Undecided. Dear Undecided, Young folks who know from their earliest recollections exactly where they're heading and go straight toward their goal are the lucky ones. But the great majority flounders, just as you are doing now.

Most of the flounders start their academic work in the liberal arts field and make their decision to specialize somewhere along the way.

I should think your parents would encourage you to do just this.

Dear Mrs. Saze, We have three children aged five, ten and twelve. The ten and twelve-year-olds are our present problem. It seems that strange behavior comes into the picture nearly every day.

We've read a number of books that are more confusing than helpful. Too much psychology and too little reality, it seems to us. So we wondered if you have found something that will make sense. Any suggestions will be deeply appreciated.

Struggling Parents. Dear Strugglers, I have culled through whole mountains of material and, if the "strange behavior" you mention stems from emotions (as is most often the case), I think you will receive help from a 29 page pamphlet entitled "Growing Pains." Write for it to the Human Relations Program, Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co., Hartford 15, Conn. It is free.

Soil Testing Pays In Higher Yields

By HERMAN MARKS Ass't. County Agent

Have you had your soil tested? It is now time to send samples of your soil to the laboratory at Auburn for crops like cotton, corn, and other crops to be planted this spring so that you may get results back in time to arrange for the proper kinds and amounts of fertilizer. If you need lime, you will want to get this applied so that the lime will have time to react and respond to this year's crop.

For several years farmers in this area have been using soil tests to guide them in fertilizing their farm crops. They have found that soil testing pays in higher yields and good quality.

If you are not familiar with taking soil tests, come to the county agent's office in Florence or write us for information that will enable you to take samples and send them to the laboratory in Auburn. We furnish information sheets as well as boxes for shipping the samples. You need no special equipment for taking soil samples. A shovel and tablespoon is all that you need to have; we will furnish all other supplies.

If you haven't had your soil tested, let us urge you to do this job as soon as possible. This job will do much for you in your farming operations in 1959 in guiding you to fertilize your crops as they should be for higher yields—the thing we are interested in doing with all crops.

Church Remember that worship services are held in all churches of our community each Sunday morning and evening, and everyone is always invited and urged to attend the church of your choice. The church needs each of us, and we need the church.

The Methodist Men's Club met on Tuesday evening at 7 p. m. for their regular program. This is a very helpful organization, and it has made a great contribution to our church and school since organizing.

Choir rehearsal each Wednesday evening at 7:30 at the Methodist Church. Mid-week Bible Study each Wednesday evening at the Church of Christ.

School The 4-H Club met with us on February 9 for their regular monthly meeting. Miss Ann Phillips and Albert Heaslett, club leaders, were in charge of the program. After the regular program in the elementary girl's group, Miss Phillips gave a very interesting discussion and demonstration pertaining to sewing. She urged each girl to participate in the sewing and baking contests that will be held in the near future. She also discussed with them the various contests that all schools are urged to participate in on Club Rally Day. Safety Essays were especially emphasized, and points to consider in the writing of them. It is hoped that several of our pupils will participate in the writing of an essay on some phase of safety. Last year we had two winners of which we were proud.

The Junior High grades are now actively engaged in a magazine selling campaign in an effort to secure needed funds for taking an educational trip to some place of historical interest in connection with their social studies program. The next meeting of the P.-T. A. will be held on March 3. At that time Rev. J. E. Beasley, Methodist minister, will have charge of the devotion, and the guest speaker will be Mr. A. B. Lightfoot, Alabama Highway Patrolman. This will be an interesting and informing program, and one that concerns each of us. We hope that more of our parents will attend these meetings in the future. It means much to a child if his parents are actively engaged in P.-T. A. work, and it fosters good home-school-community relationships which are always essential.

Leo Views the College Campus

By Dottie McRae

I have never laughed so much in my life; unless it was last year and for approximately the same reason. Last week, Players Inc. brought some of Shakespeare's most luscious characters to life on Coffee High School's stage in "Twelfth Night."

Last year it was "Taming of the Shrew" and I thought, along with just about everyone else, that nothing could be funnier. But that was before we met Uncle Toby Belch and his inimitable drinking companion, Sir Andrew Aguecheek. Then, too, there was Marvolio of the yellow stockings and the cross gartering.

It was hilarious, but so were Catherine and Petruchio last year. Thursday and Friday (the 13th) Dr. Guy Frank was on our campus discussing American's contribution to the world of music. Jazz, you know, is the only purely American music form.

Dr. Frank received his Ph. D. in composition from the Eastern School of Music of the University of Rochester. He is certainly well versed in his field. His theory, which he discussed in convocation Thursday, is that the basic principles in the composition of jazz and classical music are very similar, and that the barrier between the two is simply a product of the imagination.

Needless to say, his session in O'Neal Hall with a stereophonic hi-fi and jazz recordings was well attended.

February has always been the slowest, or at least, one of the slowest months of the year. Not this year. We have been attending convocations and concerts of some kind two or three times a week. Monday, there was a pre-eight o'clock class line in Bibb Graves waiting to get tickets to the Erailowsky concert.

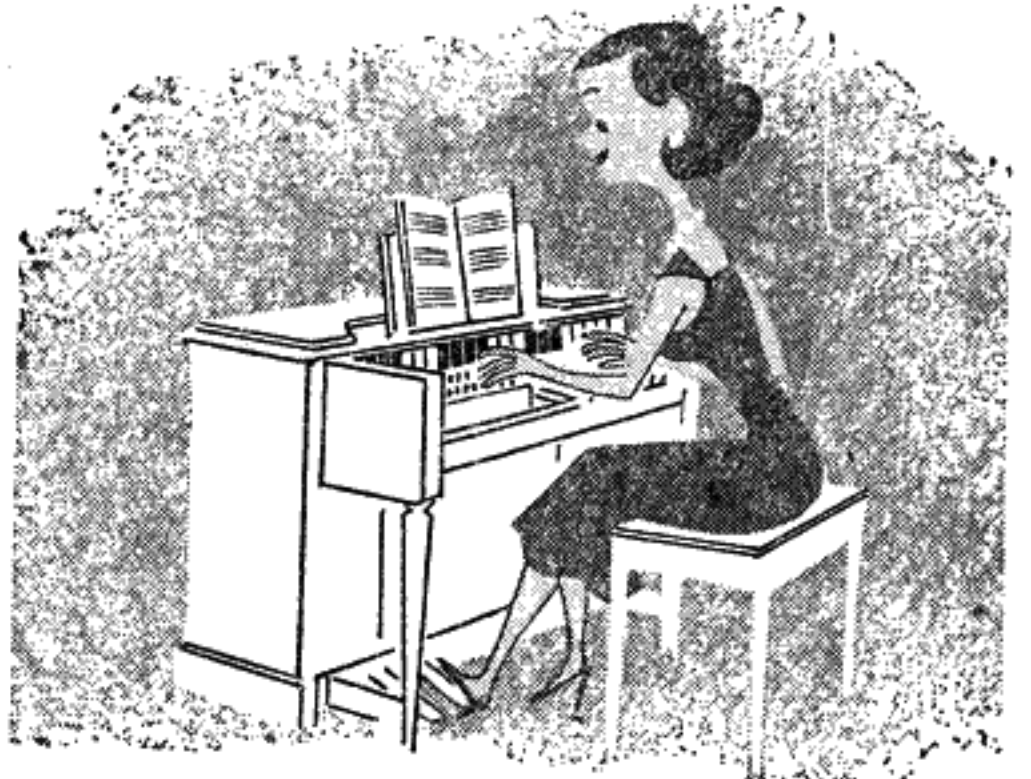

Tuesday there was the Movie League picture. This month's showing has presented numerous little difficulties. First, the picture didn't arrive on time, so the showing had to be postponed. Then we found out why the delay—the film (is that what it is?) had been stolen. Therefore a substitute, "Lili," which had been ordered and then withdrawn last fall. Life is so complicated.

Friday Jane Blair of Florence,

Pfc Howard L. Gray, 549 High St., Florence, of the Signal Unit Training Group, participated in exercise "Lucky Delta," a mammoth Third U. S. Army command post exercise on Feb. 7 - 8 at Fort Gordon, Ga. More than 4500 men representing 43 Reserve, National Guard and active Army units took part in the exercise, which is designed to train Army commanders and staff members in the most advanced doctrines and techniques of employing U. S. forces in combat.

and Clarence Smith of Birmingham were crowned Mr. and Miss Friendliness. Runners-up included Betty Lynn Miller and "Tuffy Hudson"; Elizabeth Fowler and Bill Nelms. Florence State won Saturday's ballgame and the record now stands at 10 wins and 15 losses.

"She'll outgrow those pimples, so don't worry about them." This is an impractical viewpoint in regard to acne vulgaris, which causes a skin blemish among teenagers. At the time when personal appearance means so much, the appearance of acne is more than just a physical disturbance. Acne can cause an emotional distress to leave a lasting scar in the adolescent. Acne is due to a disturbance in the oil gland function. These glands normally secrete an oily substance which is supposed to keep the skin soft and pliable. If the secretion of the sebaceous, or oil, gland moves outward normally, all is well. In some cases, the secretion collects as a plug over which the skin begins to grow, causing what is commonly known as a whitehead. More likely, the mouth of the oil gland remains open and dirt collects in it, resulting in a blackhead. Just what is responsible for these disorders is not known and nearly

BAROMETER OF LIFE

Would it really help to have an instrument to predict the storms of life?

When the barometer falls it's too late to build a sea wall or to dig a cyclone cellar. Wise men prepare when the wind is calm. A leaking roof must be mended while the sun shines.

The Church does not claim to provide a barometer of life. But it preaches every Sunday the spiritual readiness which climaxed Christ's Sermon on the Mount:

"Whoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man which built his house upon a rock:

"And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat upon that house. . .

"And it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock."

THE CHURCH FOR ALL
ALL FOR THE CHURCH:
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Corner on Cotton

BY BOB COLLINS

By the time you read this you will have heard a dozen explanations as to why cotton's support prices are lower than the trade generally expected . . . but there is only one real explanation: The Secretary of Agriculture is determined to reduce cotton surpluses in at least two ways . . . first, by not giving cotton a high support price he is trying to weed out inefficient producers . . . second, he is getting the sales price of cotton more in line with foreign growth and competitive synthetics.

The way supports were reduced was to figure parity differently from what was done in the past . . . trade didn't expect this as the Department of Agriculture had given no hint it was in the wind . . . this is the first revision of the parity formula since 1950.

Along these same lines the Secretary announced that American cotton will have an export program that makes it competitive price-wise with foreign grown cotton.

As a producer you may weep over the low support price . . . but you must smile at the possibility of American cotton for the coming year . . . the lower price will not only encourage additional use of cotton in the U. S. and abroad but it will certainly tend to stop expansion of foreign production already signs indicate a considerable reduction in Mexican cotton acreage . . . maybe as much as 35 per cent.

What About "B"?

How will the lower support price affect "B"? Choice of the cotton program? . . . frankly we don't know and we don't believe anybody else does for a very simple reason . . . the decision to go "A" or "B" depends upon individual reasons that won't apply to everybody so you can't make any sort of a generalization . . . one thing, though, the spread in dollars between "B" cotton and "A" cotton supports is slightly narrower than it would have been had a higher parity figure been used . . . this could encourage "B" production.

March 16th

Now you better believe this no matter what anybody tells you . . . if you haven't notified your county committee in writing by March 16th that you are going the "B" route, then you are going to be among the "A's" . . . don't try to come in later with a sad story about what your intentions were . . . it won't work . . . and don't say we didn't tell you!!!

VHF Waves

Cottonseed exposed to very high frequency radiation seems to yield fibers with more strength . . . nothing certain yet, but experiments continue.

Cotton Farmers To Make Choice

March 16 Deadline Set; 'A' Allotment To Apply To Those Not Filing

The next important date for upland cotton producers is the March 16 deadline for making a choice between the (A) allotment and the (B) allotment for their farms, according to Joe J. Rasch, chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

All cotton farm operators have been sent a notice of the price support levels and a reminder of the (A) and (B) allotments for their farms. Mr. Rasch urged all cotton farmers to make their choice of Cotton allotments by the deadline on March 16. After that date all farms on which the operator has not made a choice will have the (A) allotment in effect for 1959. This is a requirement of the law and cannot be changed by the County ASC Committee.

Choice (A) farm allotments are the regular allotments. Choice (B) farm cotton allotments are 40 per cent larger than the Choice (A) allotments. Another requirement is that a farm operator who has more than one farm must choose either the (A) cotton allotment for all the farms he operates or the (B) allotment for all his farms.

Mr. Rasch suggests that an operator who has an interest in other farms because of leasing, corporate, partnership, estate, or other operating arrangements should check with the county ASC office to determine his status on all the farms.

Electric Motors Help Farming

Every farmer wants to do a better job.

Agricultural Engineer Bill Cox's suggestion for accomplishing this goal is to "Farm Better Electrically." Cox is the API Extension specialist in farm buildings.

Electric motors do many jobs around the farm, Cox points out, and will replace man labor as well as improve or increase production. If you don't have many motors around your farm, here are some ideas for getting the most work out of those you have.

You can usually get better service from a single phase motor on farm lines if it is operated at 230 volts rather than 115 volts. A look at the name plate on the motor will tell whether it will operate on 230 volts. See that the windings are properly connected before putting the motor on a 230 volt line, says Cox, because a motor operating on the higher voltage uses only one-half the current used by the same motor on 115 volts.

A motor on either voltage will produce the same power, but motors on 115 volts need larger wires from the service entrance to the motor. Voltage shouldn't drop more than three percent while the motor is in use.

Since it takes four to six times as much current to start a motor as it does to keep it running under full load, the line should be designed to handle the starting current.

To make a motor do its best work, provide it with the proper size wires to supply the voltage and current required. Remove all excess dirt, chaff, or other material from the windings with a blower or by dismantling and using a brush. Oil the motor regularly, about once a month.

Four Fellowships Awarded To API

Four graduate fellowships under the National Defense Education Act are being awarded the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, according to U. S. Rep. Carl Elliott. The fellowships will be used by selected students for study in Auburn's graduate program in mathematics.

The four students to be selected will each receive $2,000 for the first year of study, $2,200 the second and $2,400 the third. For each dependent $400 per year will be provided in allowances. In addition Auburn will get up to $2,500 per year fellowship each year to defray the cost of education.

Approval of the fellowships gives national recognition to Auburn's program in mathematics. It can mean eventually that the institution may get similar aid for its engineering, agricultural engineering, physics and chemistry.

Agricultural Reminders

By SAM EICH
Asst. County Agent

Although it may seem a bit early, right now is the time for farmers to start next year's cotton crop. Soil samples should be taken and sent to the soil testing laboratory. Many farmers will need to apply lime for top yields. This material should be applied several weeks ahead of planting time and a soil test is the only way to tell for sure whether lime is needed. A soil test will also tell you the amounts of phosphorus and potash needed for your 1959 crop.

Come by your county agent's office to obtain boxes and materials needed to use in taking soil samples.

It is important to you as a cotton farmer in Lauderdale County to plant a variety that is best suited to your farm.

The highest yielding wilt-resistant varieties recommended are: Dixie King, Plains, Empire, Coker 100 Wilt, Auburn 56 and All-in-One. The highest yielding wilt-susceptible varieties recommended are: Fox, Hale 33 or Stoneville 7.

If you have not already purchased your cotton seed, we suggest that you purchase them at an early date and ask for either registered or certified seed with a germination of 80 per cent or better.

Corn is another important crop in Lauderdale County. Now is the time to arrange for your seed corn. Maybe you are not ready to buy just now, but it would certainly be well to find out where the seed can be obtained and place an order for them.

Early buying or ordering will help in two ways, (1) It will enable you to pick the best and (2) It will most likely enable you to purchase your seed corn cheaper.

It is also important that you choose one of the higher yielding varieties of corn to plant on your farm in 1959. The early season varieties recommended for this area are: Funks G-95A (Yellow), Funks G-134 (Yellow), Funks G-704 (Yellow), Pfister (P.A.G.) 403 (Yellow), Pfister (P.A.G.) 631 (White), Pfister (P.A.G.) 636 (White), Pioneer 301A (Yellow), Pioneer 302 (Yellow), Pioneer 309A (Yellow), U. S. 13 (Yellow) or Wood V-30 (Yellow).

The full season varieties recommended for this area are: Coker 911 (White), Dixie 22 (Yellow), Dixie 29 (White), Dixie 33 (White) or Dixie 55 (White).

Don't wait too late to have your soil tested for your 1959 corn crop. However, if you do not have your soil tested the general recommendations are: 60 to 90 pounds of Nitrogen and 30 pounds of P205 and 30 pounds K20. These amounts may be supplied by using 250 pounds of 4-12-12 per acre or 125 pounds of 8-24-24 per acre under the corn at planting time and side dressing the corn with 40 to 75 pounds of nitrogen about 30 days after planting.

Florence Farmer Depends On Silage

T. L. Mecke who lives on Route 5, Florence, near Shoals Creek believes in having plenty of feed in reserve for his dairy cattle.

Mr. Mecke depends on silage to supply his needs in emergency periods when grazing is short. The past few weeks has caused Mecke to begin feeding his silage and he says "I can't get along without my silage."

James Mecke, son of Mr. Mecke does most of the feeding, milking, and production of the feed for the Grade A Dairy operation. The farm consists of 200 acres with about 160 acres open land. In addition to the land owned, the Meckes rented approximately forty five acres of land. The rented land was planted to corn and made into silage in addition to sweet sorghum and corn planted on his farm.

Mr. Mecke has been depending on silage since 1949. "I prefer good corn silage rather than hay unless you have alfalfa hay," said Mecke. "You can't heat alfalfa hay," he said.

The Grade A Dairyman is milking thirty-three cows at the present time and he is quick to tell you that good quality feed and plenty of it is highly important to any dairyman.

Homemade Lard Is Quality Product

Homemade lard is a quality product if the maker observes a few precautions in the processing. API Extension Hog Marketing Specialist Ray Cavender stressed in Auburn this week.

To insure a quality lard the fat trimmings should be rendered as soon as the cutting and trimming job has been completed. The specialist explained that if the fresh pork has been allowed to chill thoroughly, trimming and cubing the fat will be much easier.

Cavender advised home processors to use a moderate fire. Overcooking lard lowers its keeping qualities. Quick cooling will add to the quality of the lard.

Homemade lard will keep much better with the addition of two or three pounds of commercially processed vegetable shortening to every 50 pounds of lard at rendering time.

The reason for the addition of the vegetable shortening, Cavender explained, is to prevent the lard from becoming rancid. The vegetable shortening contains a form of vitamin E which prevents rancidity—oxidation of substances in animal fats.

Cavender went on to say that specially prepared compounds to keep down rancidity in lard are available at most butcher supply houses. Known as anti-oxidants, these compounds have directions for use on the package.

However, the specialist said, the anti-oxidant in the form of vitamin E in vegetable shortening provides an inexpensive and easy way of controlling rancidity without tangling with chemical compounds.

Courtesy costs nothing, yet it buys things that are priceless.

Emergency Protection Personal Accident Policy

designed especially for

The Florence Herald

Subscribers and Their Family Household Members

This outstanding policy will help to pay those unexpected expenses for bodily injury—whether simple or serious—when accidents strike without warning at work, on the farm, at home, at school, at play, or while traveling. Here is a modern, practical, essential and economical personal accident policy prepared to give the best possible protection at the lowest possible cost that will fit the pocketbook of every family.

Each member of the family—man, woman and child—regardless of age, residence, occupation or activity—is constantly exposed to accident hazards "around the clock" and "around the calendar" and should have this valuable and helpful protection which is now available through this newspaper because of the serious accident situation which exists everywhere today. Subject to the policy provisions, it includes indemnity for Loss of Life, Loss of Limb, Loss of Sight, Total Disability, First Aid, Ambulance, Hospital and X-Ray.

The policy is issued without medical examination. There are no age limits (specific loss and total disability indemnities are reduced fifty per cent (50%) when the insured is or becomes age 70 and over). It costs only $5.00 per person per year, plus a first-year only registration fee of $1.00. This averages but slightly more than a penny a day for protection everyone needs and can afford to pay. It is issued by Old Republic Life Insurance Company, Chicago, Illinois.

Be Insured With This Helpful Protection!

Law Would Aid Disabled Veterans

Senator Lister Hill and Representative Kenneth S. Roberts (D-Ala.) are co-sponsoring legislation to aid veterans who receive non - service - connected disability pensions.

The legislation would allow these disabled veterans to receive full pension payments although they may be also benefiting from retirement under Civil Service, Social Security, or Railroad Retirement Acts.

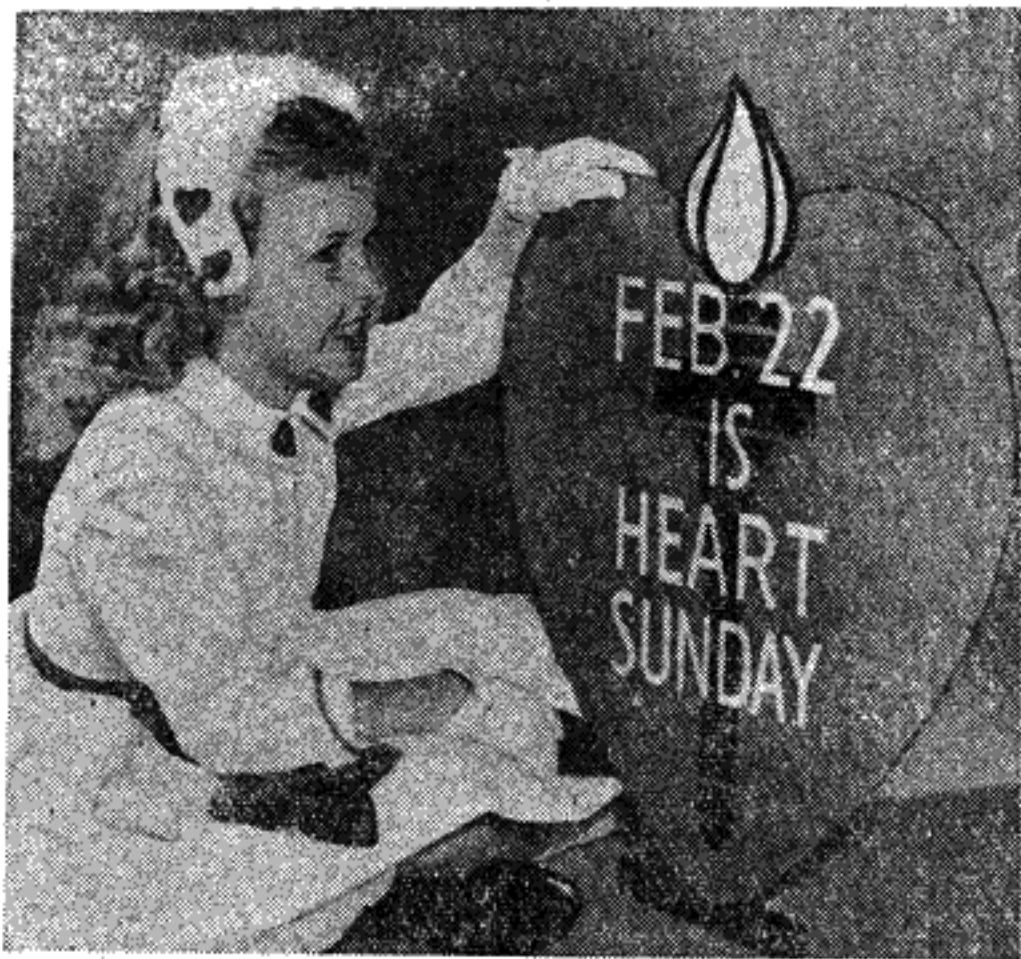

The three bills introduced would amend the Civil Service Retirement Act, the Social Security Act, and the Railroad Retirement Act, whereby pensions and annuities under each of these acts would not be considered as income in determining non - service - connected disability pensions for veterans.

Rogers FFA Has Prosperous Year

Annual Banquet Set
Feb. 23; Awards To Be Made In Corn Contest

By A. A. Thorne,
Vo.-Ag. Advisor

This has been one of our most prosperous years. The chapter has added several books to the FFA Library, and has purchased a film projector and screen. We obtained interest in a Landrace boar and placed him in the community for service, but unfortunately, he died. We have entered the quartet contest and were runner-ups in the county. We will be entering the county elimination in the soil judging and tractor driving contest and the district elimination in the livestock and dairy judging.

We have held our annual FFA Sweetheart Campaign and election to raise money to finance our banquet. We are having our annual FFA, FFA banquet February 23, 1959, in which the sweetheart, Nancy Clemmons, will be crowned. The awards for the FFA corn growing contest will be made at this time. The main purpose of the banquet is to honor our parents and give them an idea of what we have been doing.

Purposes of the FFA are:
1. Promote the agriculture program by providing opportunities for the development of leadership abilities;
2. Learn the essence of cooperating endeavor;
3. Contribute to the welfare of the school and community;
4. Develop other characteristics necessary for good rural leadership.

Each chapter has its own officers. Our officers are: Advisor A. A. Thorne, President Pat Ligon, Vice President Kenneth Smith, Secretary H. L. Gresham, Treasurer Terry Dial, Reporter Bill Richard and Sentinel Ralph Cabler.

Rogersville FFA Plans Program

Emphasis Placed On Livestock; Speaking And
Singing Contest Feb. 25

The Rogersville FFA Chapter is planning a big program in agriculture this year.

Since the cotton acreage has been reduced, more emphasis is being placed on livestock to bring in cash income.

In the Rogersville Chapter there are fifty-five FFA members. These members have thirty-eight head of sows and gilts to farrow pigs this year. Eleven of these boys have purebred Landrace animals as their projects. These Landrace animals are the popular meat-type hogs.

Last spring the Rogersville Chapter purchased a Landrace boar from Auburn to improve the breeding of their hogs.

Four of the members are stall-feeding show calves to be shown at Birmingham in April. These boys are working hard at this job of getting them fat and trained for this show.

To observe FFA Week the Rogersville Chapter will be host to the county winners in this area of the public speaking and quartet contest. This contest will be held February 25 at Lauderdale County High School.

The following chapters will have speakers in this contest: Clements High, Speake, and the Waterloo Chapter. The chapters with quartets are: Tanner, Speake, and Waterloo.

GEORGE WASHINGTON
"America's First Scientific Farmer"

Believing, as we do, in the future of farming we are fully aware of the great contribution being made to this basic industry by the Future Farmers of America, whose thirty-first anniversary we observe during the coming week.

The Vocational Agriculture students in our high schools daily are learning more and more about farming practices of all types . . . through training, through study and through application of facts learned in the classroom, in the shops and on the farms, these boys are becoming more and more proficient in this ancient and honorable calling.

With training through actual farm projects, each year more and more boys are coming out of schools with the know-how of farming on a modern scientific basis. It is through these boys that the future of our nation will depend, for only through a strong agriculture can this nation hope to survive. We believe in the future of farming as practiced by the vocational students of Lauderdale County High Schools.

One hundred twenty two attended Sunday school at the Bethel Baptist Church on Sunday morning. Others arrived for the 11 o'clock worship service. It was good to have the Marvin McConnells back home with us again, after an absence of several months spent with their daughter, Robbie Fack and her family in Cleveland, Ohio, due to illness in her home. Robbie's little daughter accompanied them home.

Fifty two attended Training Union and evening worship in the evening. The Rev. McDougal filled his pulpit as usual at both the morning and the evening services.

The men and the boys of the Bethel Church enjoyed playing a game of basketball against the men and boys of the Anderson Baptist Church on Saturday evening, at the Anderson High School gym. Three games were played, with Bethel winning two of them. The boys, R.A.'s, are under the leadership of Buddy McCrary, and we feel that he is to be commended in his efforts with them.

If you have been present on one of these occasions in the past; supper at our school and entertained afterwards by this group of singer—then we hope to see you with us again this year. If you haven't joined us on such an occasion then we feel that you have missed an enjoyable evening. So mark this date on your calendar and eat with us on Feb. 26. We'll appreciate your support toward our school and you'll know by our welcome that we appreciate your presence, and your fellowship with us.

The Nation's First Scientific Farmer

We believe in the future of farming as practiced by the vocational students of the Lexington High School and all high schools in Lauderdale County. It is through these boys and their work that the future of our country rests.

The Future Farmers of America are, through their training and experiences, through study and application of the facts learned bringing to our farms the answer of our agriculture problems. They are the answer to the questions asked today about our farm future . . . on them we lean heavily.

We Assure You of Our Interest and Full Support

Throughout the years it has been our pleasure to support the FFA movement in all its phases. This we have done because we know first-hand the value of the training given in each and every FFA chapter. We pledge our full cooperation at all times and offer every assistance of which we are capable.

Missile School Starts Classes In Hawk System

The first class to be trained in the new Hawk anti-aircraft missile that soon will be used by troops here and abroad has begun at the Army Ordnance Guided Missile School, it is announced by Col. H. S. Newhall, commandant.

Ten U. S. enlisted specialists and two Canadian officers are in the class that is training on the seventh missile system to be incorporated in the Missile School's curriculum.

The first class opened its sessions in a $2,100,000 academic building and training shop specially constructed for the conduct of complex missile instruction.

A corps of 83 instructors, the largest group to be added to the OGMSS facility at one time to date, has been preparing for the start of the new course for more than a year. Other classes in various phases of the missile system are scheduled to begin in the near future.

The Hawk gets its name from the "Homing All the Way Killer" radar mechanism that enables it to intercept enemy aircraft at tree-top level and above. It complements the Army Nike air defense missiles that protect against high-flying attackers.

NATIONAL FFA WEEK

1928 - 31st ANNIVERSARY - 1959

— February 21 - 28 —

PURPOSE OF NATIONAL FFA WEEK

National Future Farmers of America Week seeks to focus attention on the work of the Future Farmers of today, who will be the successful farmers of tomorrow.

This nation must have many thousands of NEW farmers every year to replace those who die, retire, or otherwise leave the farm. These must be men with experience and training enough to become successful farmers. Generally, they must be men who have begun farming at an early age, so that by the time they are ready to marry and start a family they will be firmly established in a farming program that promises a good future.

Vocational Agriculture and the FFA constitute the most effective program yet developed for training boys to be good farmers and helping them to become established in the farming occupations of their choice.

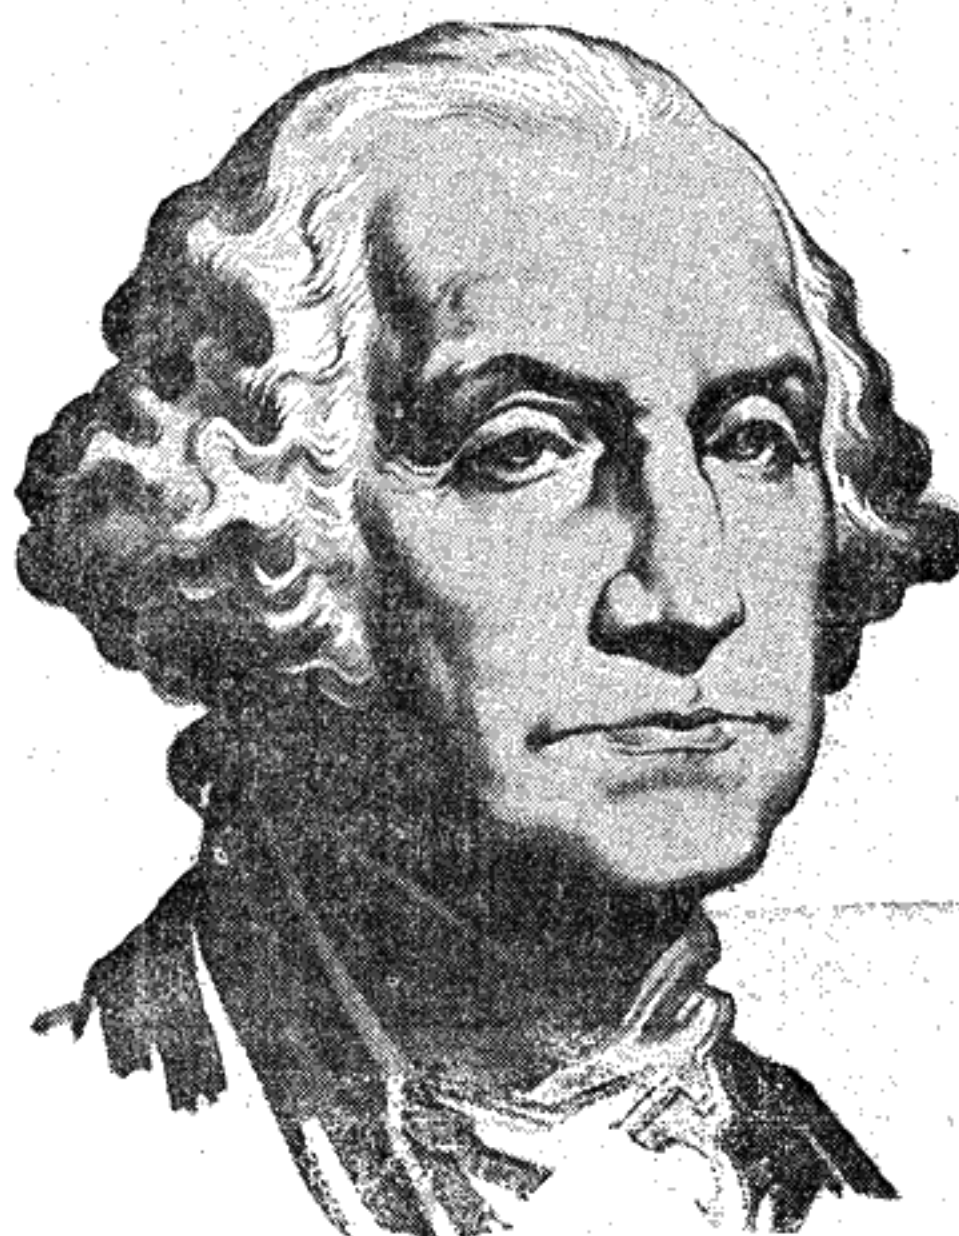

In view of the nation's need for NEW farmers, it is fitting that recognition be given these young men who are preparing for careers in farming. Encouragement at this time will do much to stimulate them to harder work and greater achievement.

WHY FFA WEEK IS OBSERVED DURING FEBRUARY

National FFA Week comes every year during the week of the anniversary of the birthday of George Washington. Although usually considered first as a great general, our first president, and an engineer, George Washington's first love was the farm he called Mount Vernon. There he was one of the first in the nation to practice contour planting, crop rotations, and other soil conserving methods. Probably no other man in America of his day spent more time seeking new agricultural information, either by experimentation on his own farm, or by correspondence with agricultural scientists in England. The title of America's first "scientific farmer" might be applied to Washington. It was more than a century after his death that many of the sound agricultural practices he advocated found general practice.

It is out of deep respect and admiration for George Washington, the farmer in whose progressive ways they seek to follow, that Future Farmers annually observe their National FFA Week at the time of his birthday.

WE SALUTE OUR FUTURE FARMERS

THE FFA MOTTO:

"LEARNING TO DO, DOING TO LEARN;
EARNING TO LIVE, LIVING TO SERVE"

WHAT IS THE FFA?

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA is the national organization of farm boys studying vocational agriculture in rural high schools of the nation. FFA is an intra-curricular activity, having origin and root in the instruction program for boys who wish to prepare themselves for a successful career in farming. Among other things, members learn through active participation how to conduct and take part in public meetings; to speak in public; to market farm products; to solve their own problems; to finance themselves; to use improved farming methods; and to assume civic responsibility. Classroom training is a supervised farming program under the direction of the vocational agriculture teacher who is an agriculture college graduate employed on a 12-month basis.

WHY WAS FFA FORMED?

Vocational Agriculture in the public high schools was given its first big boost by the Smith-Hughes Act passed by the Congress in 1917, providing for Federal Funds on a matching basis with the States, to promote a program of education that would help to prepare those who intended to enter the occupation of farming. Many schools throughout the nation established vocational agriculture instruction in the early 1920's. Teachers, recognizing the need for some kind of organization to stimulate more interest in farming by the boys, provide them with additional incentive, give leadership training, and provide an opportunity for wholesome organized recreation. Many local "clubs," with a wide variety of names, were established to meet that need. The local units, in turn, organized county and state associations, and by 1928 the movement was so widespread that a national organization was formed. The national organizational meeting was held November 20, 1928, in Kansas City, Mo. About 35 vocational agriculture students attended the first national convention. Now, 8,000 or more members attend the national conventions held each year in Kansas City.

Thirty-First Anniversary
FEBRUARY 21-28

GEORGE WASHINGTON, our Farmer President, is credited with being America's first scientific farmer . . . and now as we observe the Thirty-First Anniversary of the founding of the FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA organization we also pay tribute to this First American on the anniversary of his birth.

It is fitting and right that these two memorable events be celebrated together . . . and it is fitting and right that we pause to pay tribute to the youth of America who have dedicated their future to progress in agriculture.

ture, one of our greatest needs . . . and a need on which much of the future prosperity of our county depends.

The health and much of the wealth of the nation depend upon the farmer and the things he produces. Agriculture, long recognized as a basic industry, grows more important as the population of this nation, now 170,000,000 persons, increases and living grows more complex. Today, farming—scientific farming—offers a great challenge and a great opportunity. Our Future Farmers are meeting this challenge.

This nation needs more farmers. It needs farmers with training, experience and new ideas. FFA is the answer because through its chapters members are taught the fundamentals of good farming at an early age so that they are able to make farming a success.

We are reminded during FFA WEEK of the obligation we owe the young men of rural America who learn by doing. It is fitting that such recognition be given these young men who are preparing for careers in agriculture.
